WALEY AND MATE PLEAD NOT GUILTY OF TACOMA KIDNAP

Tight-Lipped Federal Agents Fly Suspects to Scene of Crime Where They Face Death Under State Law.

SEARCH FOR MAHAN SHIFTS TO CANADA

'G-Men' Speed to Butte on Theory Fugitive of Trio May Have Hidden Outstanding $84,000 There.

TACOMA, Wash., June 12.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley, speeded to Tacoma by airplane from Salt Lake City, pleaded not guilty late today to two federal charges in the $200,000 kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser, a crime department of justice agents said they have confessed.

While the hunt for William Mahan, ex-convict supposedly implicated by the Waleys, went on from Butte, Mont., to Canada on a new set of "hot clues," the suspected couple formally denied guilt of both "Lindbergh law" and mail fraud charges.

Bond was set at $100,000 each on the mail fraud charge, but no bail was set in the Lindbergh law case by United States Commissioner H. G. Fitch, before whom they were taken under heavy guard.

As swiftly as they were brought in, the Waleys were whisked away 30 minutes later in separate motor cars to the Thurston county jail at Olympia, 35 miles away, where they were placed for safekeeping.

They were hurried into the building and taken to the jail cells on the top floor, three stories above the street.

They took the court proceedings in a matter-of-fact way.

Kiss Each Other.

After waiving preliminary hearings they kissed each other and the attractive 19-year-old Mrs. Waley tilted her head over on her ex-convict husband's shoulder.

Police of British Columbia kept watch for a tan or light brown coupe bearing a Utah license which the United States border patrol reported entered Canada at Newlay, B. C., June 8, hopeful of rounding up confederates of the Waleys.

A Maletine Falls (Wash.) pawnbroker said he believed one of the men in the car—who exchanged a watch with him—was a member of the kidnap gang.

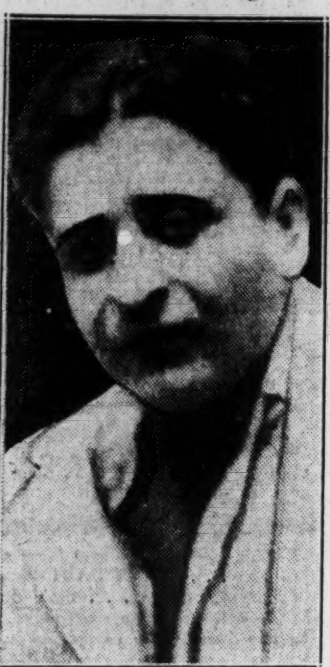

However, police found that two bills passed in Kelowna, B. C., which were believed to have been part of the kidnap money, do not tally with numbers on the ransom list.

A federal agent lighted a cigarette for Mrs. Waley after the hearing. She laughed as she awaited removal from the courtroom and separation from her husband. Both concealed their faces, though, as they ran the gauntlet of news cameras.

Mrs. Waley was first to plead. She faced the commissioner while her husband stood behind her.

HUNT FOR SLAYER SPURRED BY PHOTO

Picture of Jimmy Rosenfield Found by Officers, and Circulated Widely.

Renewed activity in the nation-wide search for Jimmy Rosenfield, alias "Red," alleged murderer of an Atlanta man, came yesterday as the first photograph of the fugitive came into possession of police.

The picture, the first ever printed of Rosenfield, was found by officers in "The Constitution" this morning.

Spurred by its publication, the hunt for Rosenfield gained impetus. County Officers Carroll Cates, W. F. Whitaker, S. D. Vaughn and W. J. Anderson are circulating the photo on a national basis.

A coroner's jury held that Rosenfield shot and killed Lester V. Stone, a radio repairman, on April 27 in the home of Robert B. Bullock, on Parkway drive. He is wanted for murder and a $200 reward has been offered for his capture.

Testimony at the inquest revealed that Stone was killed by mistake, that Rosenfield evidently thought he was Bullock and shot him dead in the hallway of the Bullock apartment.

Rosenfield was shot after he had said he would shoot her husband if he did not run away to New York with him. On the fatal night, he followed her to her home and rang the door bell. Stone, a friend visiting Bullock, answered the ring. Rosenfield fired and killed him.

Police traced Rosenfield to Marietta and thence to Chattanooga but have never apprehended him.

Information concerning the shooting and descriptions of the killer were distributed by officers but until yesterday a picture was available.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—A 38-day coal supply was estimated on hand today as strike clouds darkened over the coal industry.

The bureau of mines, drawing on recent mining reports, said an abnormal supply was available. Due to increased activity in coal pits since the strike loomed. Next Monday, June 17, has been set as the deadline for a nation-wide walkout in the coal industry.

P. O. AGENTS SEEK TO TRAP BRADLEY THROUGH STOCKS

List of Securities Believed in Fugitive Broker's Possession Broadcast. Early Capture Expected

Transfer agents of more than a score of American corporations have been supplied with the list of stocks believed to be in the possession of Benjamin R. Bradley, fugitive president of the American Bond & Share Corporation, and it is believed that his capture eventually will be brought about by his attempts to dispose of the stocks obtained from his alleged victims.

Details of the search for Bradley were revealed yesterday by J. W. Cole, regional postoffice inspector, who told how $2,000 in securities sold by Bradley in New York during April were traced from New York to Chicago, thence to Detroit and then back to New York.

For a while yesterday it was believed that Bradley was in custody in Denton, Texas, as a man answering his general description was held for questioning there. H. B. Clammit, postal inspector in Fort Worth, Texas, interviewed the suspect, however, and then notified Inspector Cole that he was not Bradley. The suspect, who gave his name as James R. Rozier, was released.

Hotel Manager Debauched.

Bradley defrauded a New York hotel manager, whom he persuaded to dispose of $2,000 worth of the securities. The securities were traced through four different brokerage houses after postal inspectors had been notified of their appearance by the transfer agent of the corporation which had issued the securities.

As a result of warnings sent out by the postal inspectors, whenever any of the securities Bradley had in his possession are sold and returned to the transfer agent for registration.

LONG'S FILIBUSTER THWARTS ACTION ON NRA MEASURE

Louisianan, in Complete Control of Situation, Lectures Senators on Pot-likker Making.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP) (Thursday)—The single-handed filibuster by Senator Long, unequaled in recent years, held the senate in session into the early morning hours today.

Frantic cloak-room negotiating by democratic leaders in the post-midnight period failed to produce a solution to the impasse. Long's hair was rumpled, he hoarse but still shouting.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(UP)—Senator Huey P. Long, democrat, of Louisiana, forced the senate into a night session tonight with a five and one-half hour filibuster against a resolution extending the NRA until April 1.

At midnight, E. S. T., the Kingfish still was in possession of the floor, talking on and every subject that came to mind in an attempt to kill time.

After he had been speaking almost 12 hours, he looked at the clock and said: "We'll probably be here at this time tomorrow morning."

Administration leaders realizing the NRA would die at midnight Saturday unless continuing legislation is passed, paced the senate chamber nervously, seeking some formula to stop Long.

Democratic leaders became madder and madder as Long continued to tie the senate in knots. One powerful group of majority senators publicly served notice on Long that it was out to break his "control."

Senator Schellenback, democrat, Washington, speaking for a group of additional pledges which the Nanking regime has so far been unable to carry out.

Gravity of Situation Is Intensified By Tokyo's Stern Determination To Gain Full Control of Hopei

United States Maintains Official Silence on Developments, But Follows New Events With Interest and Apprehension.

SECRET PROTOCOLS HINTED IN ARTICLE

London Hears Japanese Warned China She Is Not To Expect Help From Other Powers.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—The United States government tonight continued to remain publicly silent on the critical situation in north China, but officials followed all developments with considerable interest and some apprehension.

While some observers here made no secret of their belief that the Japanese demands made China's acceptance the only alternative to active fighting in the vicinity of Tientsin and Peiping, the bulletin published by the Foreign Policy Association today reported the alleged existence of secret protocols attached to the Tangu truce of 1933.

The bulletin's article, written by T. A. Bissan, asserted that the secret protocols, claimed to embody the substance of the famous 21 demands presented to China in 1915, were attached to the truce through which Japan's move against Shanghai was brought to an end on May 31, 1933.

"The existence of these protocols," the article said, "would go far to explain the importance attached to the Tangu truce by the Japanese authorities and the otherwise inexplicable references to it contained in their recent demands."

It also supplies the reason for Nanking's long list of concessions to Japan since 1933; the restoration of through railway tariff between Peiping and Mukden, the resumption of postal service with Manchukuo, the refunding of the Nishihara loan, the establishment of customs posts along the Great Wall, and tariff favors to Japanese goods.

In constantly referring to the Tangu truce the Japanese authorities, under this interpretation, are in effect calling for the fulfillment of additional pledges which the Nanking regime has so far been unable to carry out.

Nippon Hordes Move Into North China Zone

With naval transports from Yokohama pouring their burdens of Japanese fighting men into Tientsin, and with Tokyo's air forces streaking into Hopei province daily in increasing numbers, Nippon is reported in complete control of a vast section of north China, indicated by the shaded section in the corner of the Great Wall between Jehol and Tientsin. With this infection sweeping rapidly southward, Nanking yesterday flatly rejected a part of the invaders' sweeping demands. Shanghai meanwhile looked on with increasing concern, fearing a major Sino-Japanese crisis.

CHINA "CANNOT" ACCEPT DEMANDS, SAYS NANKING

NANKING, June 12.—(AP)—(Thursday)—China "cannot" accept Japan's north China demands, national government officials said early today, because they would reduce China to the status of a "Japanese protectorate."

The statement—the first open defiance of Japan's aggressive military leaders—was made shortly after the national government's central political council, China's highest executive body, met in secret "urgent session" and reportedly decided to reject some, at least, of the Japanese demands.

While 800 more Japanese fighting men moved into Tientsin, seat of the Sino-Japanese trouble, the political council was said to have telegraphed General Ho Ying-chin, minister of war, at Peiping:

"Prepare for eventualities should the Japanese carry out threats to advance upon Peiping and Tientsin."

Reports from Peiping meanwhile said Japanese authorities were pressing new demands upon General Ho, among them the ousting of all Chinese officials in Hopei province hostile to Japan and their replacement by persons pro-Japanese.

This confirmed reports current here that the Japanese military authorities, whose demands May 29 constituted virtually all Japan's demands, still more sweeping plans in mind.

BOLIVIA, PARAGUAY CLIPPER EN ROUTE SIGN TRUCE PACT TO MIDWAY ISLES

Effective Friday, Legislatures Must Ratify Terms; Populace Joyous

By PAUL SANDERS.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

BUENOS AIRES, June 12.—The "cease firing" order will resound all along the Chaco's blood-drenched battle lines Friday at noon, and three years of warfare, that took an estimated 100,000 Paraguayan and Bolivian lives, will end.

A peace protocol worked out by American neutrals during two weeks of negotiations here was formally signed by representatives of the two belligerents at 12:30 p. m. today, setting in motion machinery the neutrals hoped would bring definite settlement of the 50-year-old Chaco controversy.

Under its terms, hostilities will halt Friday at midnight, to remain suspended until the neutral military commission which was to leave Buenos Aires by airplane this afternoon fixes the lines for the formal 12-day truce agreement.

Tonight virtually every South American capital was celebrating the end of the long, bitter, bloody war, with the festivities approaching the peak of delirium in Asuncion and La Paz, capitals of Paraguay and Bolivia.

The glad news was flashed to the warring troops in the Chaco, who face only 48 hours' peril of death from bullets, hunger and thirst.

Signing Broadcast.

Thomas M. Rillo and Louis R. Kiar, foreign ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay, respectively, signed for their countries in the ceremony at the Casa Rosada, presidential mansion, over which President Augustin P. Justo, of Argentina, presided. The ceremonies were broadcast by radio to the warring nations.

Representatives of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, the United States and Uruguay witnessed the crowning of their forthright peace endeavors, which succeeded where 18 previous mediation and conciliation efforts had failed. Members of the diplomatic corps also were present.

Truce Demolition.

In the course of the 12-day truce, armies of the belligerents will be demobilized. A peace conference at Buenos Aires, expected to be summoned immediately thereafter, will discuss terms of permanent settlement of the conflict.

Heading the negotiators who stuck hard at their difficult task until today's formal signing of the protocol climaxed their efforts were Foreign Ministers Carlos Saavedra Lamas, of Argentina, and Jose Carlos Macedo Soares, of Brazil.

Hugh S. Gibson, United States ambassador to Brazil, flew here from Rio de Janeiro this week to help his colleague at Buenos Aires, Alexander W. Weddell, in the final negotiations, while Dr. Carlos Concha and Dr. Miguel Crujeira, Peruvian and Chilean foreign ministers, arrived today by plane.

Congressional Approval.

Both the belligerent governments agreed to seek congressional ratification within 10 days of the general peace protocol and the additional protocol for cessation of hostilities Friday.

Cessation of the Chaco hostilities will terminate the only declared warfare in the world today—albeit it is a unilateral case of declared hostilities.

Following years of hostilities, Paraguay declared war on Bolivia May 10, 1932, amid popular acclaim in the Paraguayan capital. But Bolivia never reciprocated this declaration, and her statesmen steadfastly have maintained growth. Plantings in north Georgia were delayed by wet weather and crops got off to a late start. But taking the state as a whole, the crop outlook is satisfactory. It is too early for me to say anything about the harvest of peaches and watermelons yet.

Unfavorable Weather Reported Over Path But Big Ship Wants It.

ALAMEDA, Cal., June 12.—(UP)—Prepared for an "obstacle race," Pan-American Airways' four-motored clipper plane zoomed away from its Alameda base for a 3,800-mile flight to tiny Midway Islands at 3 p. m. P. S. T. today.

At 10 p. m. the ship was 353 miles out, flying at 102 miles an hour at 5,200 feet, bucking a 22-mile an hour headwind. Ceiling and visibility still unlimited with the sea moderate beneath. The plane had not yet entered the storm area which it expected to meet 250 miles to the coast.

Take-off of the huge ship purposely had been delayed until today to permit it to make its third flight over the Pacific in weather conditions which will test its flying capacities and the powerful radio directional beam used to guide it.

The huge plane will fly directly into a forbidding stretch of clouds, rain squalls and fog. It is expected to encounter low-lying clouds and rain when 200 miles out, and at 250 miles will speed into a cold front or cyclone area moving across its path from Vancouver Island, northwest of Seattle, Wash.

The broken weather, offering anything but "ideal" conditions, will continue to Honolulu, first stop for the plane in its boundary-smashing flight.

Musick in Command.

Captain Edwin C. Musick, commander of the plane in its round-trip flight to Honolulu April 17-23, again was directing the clipper. With him were the five men who have shared his pioneering work in exploring the first portions of Pan-American's projected trans-Pacific air route.

First Officer R. O. D. Sullivan was at the plane's controls. Others were: Navigator, Engineering Officer Victor A. Wright, Navigation Officer W. T. Jarboe Jr., and Junior Flight Officer Harry A. Canaday.

The clipper probably will stop only briefly at Honolulu, then continue "on schedule" to Midway Islands, 1,388 miles out.

LICENSES ON WINE ARE SET FOR CITY

Retailers Will Pay $60, Wholesalers $300 Under Board Recommendations

License tax for wine manufacturers, wholesalers, and retail dealers was set yesterday afternoon by the tax committee of city council, which body also proposed a reduction in one beer retail license.

The beer tax reduction for retail dealers selling the beverage not to be consumed on the premises. The cut, both $25 and $40, will alter beer taxes remained the same in the committee's schedule.

The new city wine tax ordinance will be presented at council's next meeting and if passed will become effective July 1.

$35,000 Revenue Seen.

J. Henson Tatum, city clerk, estimated that beer and wine revenue will total at least $35,000 for the remaining six months of 1935. Annual licensing of the two beverages will net the city approximately $75,000.

Heretofore, beer taxes were payable in advance, but the committee recommended that in the future manufacturers and brewers and wholesale dealers of wine and beer may pay semi-annually and retail dealers in both districts may pay quarterly.

It was voted that permits to sell wine in Atlanta must be obtained from the police committee, as is already the case with beer dealers. These permits will be revoked where dealers caught selling whisky, under the provisions of the proposed ordinance.

No reduction was provided for dealers handling both beer and wine.

Shortly before the tax committee, headed by Max Cuba, chairman, began deliberation on the wine tax, a delegation representing Atlanta restaurant associations asked that the tax on beer be reduced.

A spokesman for the group requested that dealers handling only beer, both wine and beer, be taxed $50, and those selling bottle drinks and draught beer with more than three spoons be taxed $100, and a middle classification handling bottles and draught beer with three or less spoons, $75.

The only reduction the committee considered was for that of dealers selling beer not to be consumed on the premises. This license was reduced $10 annually and the payments placed on quarterly basis.

BEER SALE BARRED BY MANY COUNTIES

Local Authorities Keep Out Brew by Excessive Fees or Other Means.

Fifty-odd cities and counties in Georgia have outlawed beer under discretionary powers of the beer licensing act ratified May 15.

The act authorizes governing bodies of localities to grant or deny licenses to dealers.

Brewers, wholesalers and retailers can obtain a permit only after they have bought a license in counties where they propose to do business, under a ruling by Attorney-General M. J. Conaway.

More than 50 cities and counties have licensed beer, but in some instances prohibitive fees are required, as shown in letters received by E. Matheson, member of the state revenue commission.

For instance, the commission of Oconee county fixed a flat $1,000 annual license against the sale of beer. "I don't think we will be bothered with issuing any license," a commissioner wrote Matheson.

The fee was derived from replies to a form letter sent out by Matheson, asking such information.

Officials of Savannah forwarded a list of 119 beer dealers licensed by the city. Chatham county charges $700 for wholesalers and $100 for retailers. The city fee is separate.

The "Tift (Tifton) county commission requires the indorsement of three responsible and reputable citizens before an applicant may obtain a license to sell beer. The fee is $5 a year.

Licenses of $5 were issued in Doerun after the town council had fixed the fee by ordinance, but permits were revoked after council discovered an old ordinance strictly forbidding alcoholic beverages.

In the town of Andersonville an official wrote that "drinks" were outlawed there in the eighties, and that the law had to be repealed before beer could be had there.

Fatter Pocketbooks, Fuller Bins In Prospect for Dixie Farmers

By the Associated Press.

Farmers over most of the south yesterday read a prediction of fatter pocketbooks and fuller food bins into generally favorable crop reports.

Rains and cool weather in many sections have retarded growth and plantings but Dixie's agricultural picture for the most part was regarded as bright.

Georgia's crop conditions in the south and southeast portions of the state were reported "exceptionally good" by Commissioner of Agriculture Thomas A. Linder.

"In a portion of the western section of the state," he went on, "there were excessive spring rains; in a small western area excessive dry weather re-

CAROLINA GOVERNOR ASKS REVIVAL OF NRA

Johnson Among Early Arrivals at Biloxi for Chief Executives' Meet.

BLOXI, Miss. June 12.—(AP)—Immediate state action to revive the NRA was urged upon the National Governors' Conference today by Governor Olin D. Johnson, of South Carolina, on the eve of the opening of the twenty-seventh annual governors' conference tomorrow.

"It is my hope," said Johnson, "that out of this conference we will be able to evolve a plan to have the executives of the states call for voluntary pledges from employers, with a definite and unified course of action to be followed by the labor departments of each state until such time as appropriate state legislation can be enacted."

One of the early arrivals among the more than 20 governors expected before the conference officially opens tomorrow morning, Governor Johnson wasted little time in launching his fight for retention of the principles of the NRA. He is scheduled for an address on the subject tomorrow or Friday.

The defunct National Recovery Act is only one of several major topics which is scheduled for spirited discussion as the chief executives of half the states of the Union gather to formulate a plan.

"LONG DISTANCE"
About the Call You
Want to Make

STATISTICS are of little concern to a person when they hurriedly place an important long distance telephone call.

They want service.

And they get service. Today, on almost every long distance call, the distant number is secured while you hold the line. Only a few years ago, usually the operator said "I'll call you back," and you hung up the receiver to await the connection with your party.

The statistics: In 1925 the average time in connecting a call, 7.5 minutes. In 1934, only 1.5 minutes. And during this period long distance rates were voluntarily reduced.

Consider what this means to you.

At high speed and low cost you can settle business problems in other cities, buy, sell, collect, without leaving your desk. And, too, you can pay social calls with friends and relatives and enjoy a pleasant voice-visit with them from your easy chair.

For information about the service, just ask the long distance operator about the call you'd like to make to anyone, anytime, anywhere.

LOW RENTAL AVERAGE URGED BY ATLANTAN

Charles Palmer Advocates $15 a Month Minimum Level.

CINCINNATI, June 12.—(AP)—A low-cost housing rent average of $15 a month was advocated today before the National Building Owners' and Managers' Association, which was told that proper housing within the reach of those in the lower income brackets is a certainty.

Charles Palmer, of Atlanta, former president of the association, said the average he advocated was based on figures compiled by the real estate property inventory of the Department of Commerce.

There is but one approach to low-cost housing, he asserted. "Find out what the people whom we are trying to benefit can afford to pay, and then work back and supply by subsidy the difference between the rent these people can afford to pay and that which is actually the economic rent as set up in the procedure used for a private enterprise."

Palmer asserted low-cost housing "by the hundreds of millions of dollars" will be achieved no matter who sits in the White House. "Nothing under heaven," he said, "could stop this movement in this country, and we must see that it is really low rent housing we are doing and protect it as much."

Walter Gordon Merritt, of New York, legal adviser to the real estate board of that city during the building service strike last year, told delegates to the Building Owners' and Managers' convention that a labor machine is being developed in the metropolis, which, if not curbed, will reach into every leading city of the country.

As an outgrowth of the strike, he said, union interests are planning to enlarge their power control of transportation and allied industries. Elsewhere in New York, he added, have indicated a plan for union domination through refusal to give service to messengers and truckmen not affiliated with unions.

Peace Assurance Is Greatest Need, Roosevelt Warns West Pointers

Graduates Urged To Beware of Overlooking Civilian Viewpoint.

Text of F.D.R. Speech At Military Academy

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—The text of President Roosevelt's speech to the graduating class of the United States Military Academy today follows:

"I am one who was born and reared within a few miles of West Point. I have always been familiar with the long and glorious record of the United States Military Academy, and I have always thought of the officers and cadets stationed here as my friends and neighbors."

"I am glad to have been here to attend in person the brilliant ceremonies, reviews and the entertainments of the past few days."

"At this moment we come to the close of the fourth year of preparation for a great career, but also the induction into the army of the United States of its annual infusion of new blood whereby our military leadership is kept young, forward-looking and virile."

"This academy, with its sister school of Annapolis, are the personification of democracy in the equality of opportunity they afford, unqualified by prior social position or economic standing. They nurture patriotism and devotion to country. They teach that honor, integrity and the faithful performance of duty are to be valued above any personal advantage or advancement."

"Their success is written in the long and brilliant record of service, which their graduates rendered to the nation. It is true that in your curriculum you have been studying a profession—one in which the need of specialization has greatly increased in recent years. But this is true of many other professions. The development of modern civilization calls for specialization."

"Yet, with specialization it is essential that those who enter upon a profession, civilian or military, must eternally keep before them the public service relationship of their own profession to the rights, the hopes and the needs of the whole body of citizens who make up the nation. One of the most difficult tasks of government today is to avoid the aggrandizement of any one group and to keep the main objective of the general good clear and unimpaired."

"The captain of a company will fail if in thinking only of his company he forgets the relationship of his company to the company on his right and the company on his left—the relationship of his company to the regiment as a whole. The successful commander of an army must give consideration to all of the units which make up his army and in addition, must of necessity remember the existence, the condition and the ultimate strength of his reserves of the civilian population which is serving the same cause behind the lines."

"A sense of proportion is essential to the effective attainment of any great objective. I shall always remember a day in the summer of 1918 when I visited the headquarters of General Foch, the commander-in-chief of the allied and associated armies. With a single aide I motored from Paris and came to a delightful old chateau far behind the lines and lying within its little walled park in the most peaceful, bucolic surroundings you can imagine, one sentry at the gate. Within the park a few chickens and a couple of cows. At the door, nobody. In answer to our ring, the door was opened by a captain and in a moment we found ourselves in the presence of General Foch, who was sitting in a comfortable chair in a large living room, reading a French novel. I spent an hour with the general and discovered that his entire staff consisted of half a dozen officers and a dozen privates."

"On some occasions in our history we have reduced our army to a level unjustified by our regard to our own safety," he said. "It was following our conviction that we had again drifted too far in that direction that I received the approval of the Congress to accomplish a partial restoration of the army's enlisted strength and increasing the enrollment of cadets in the United States Military Academy."

"When the graduation ceremonies closed with the class filing snappily by the president to receive their diplomas and commissions as second lieutenants, he drove with members of his party to the home of the academy superintendent where a luncheon was served in the garden."

"Mr. Roosevelt at noon headed back for Washington with several mail pouches filled with work, mostly of a routine nature, that he finished in the seclusion of his Hyde Park house during the five days that he remained there."

"It was indicated that he would return to Hyde Park within the next two weeks for an other brief stay, coming there from New London, Conn., where he plans to view the Yale-Harvard boat races June 21."

"SILENT SPEAKERS TO MEET JULY 15 Society of Deaf Expecting Attendance of 2,000 in Kansas City."

KANSAS CITY, June 12.—(AP)—Here's a convention that is different. There will be no speakers, but the delegates won't hear them.

There will be a band, yet the musicians will not hear what they are playing. Neither will their leader—nor the soloist at the hand accompaniment her in "The Star-Spangled Banner," for that matter, neither will the expected 2,000 delegates.

"But the meeting will move along with as much smoothness and dispatch as any other convention," F. R. Murphy said today in discussing plans for the quadrennial convention here July 15-20 of the National Fraternal Society for the Deaf.

"In fact," continued Murphy, a member of the committee on arrangements, "it will move faster because we can converse and listen at the same time. And ours is one convention in which every delegate is 'all eyes' from start to finish."

Beside the welcoming speakers will stand Mrs. H. S. Holliday, of Kansas City, interpreting the address word for word in the sign language. She is not deaf.

CONFESION CLAIMED IN CUBAN KIDNAPING

10 Associates in Crime Reported Named by One of Suspects.

HAVANA, June 12.—(AP)—Sources close to the army intelligence service said today at least one of the suspects arrested in the Antonio San Miguel kidnapping case had confessed, naming 10 other persons as associates in the crime.

This information was said to have enabled police to find the house in Guanabacoa where the 78-year-old multi-millionaire and four employees were believed to have been held after their abduction last Wednesday night.

Police also found San Miguel's missing automobile parked in Vedado suburb. The machine was the one in which the wealthy financier and his companions were riding at the time of the kidnapping.

Those under arrest for participation in the crime included a former policeman, his wife and her mother and uncle. The former policeman, Ramon Suarez, was captured near Quivican after authorities surrounded his farm. Suarez fled toward a cane field, firing a revolver as he ran, but the police overtook him.

The body of Secret Policeman Julian Guerrero, who was active in training the kidnappers of Antonio San Miguel, was found today, bullet-ridden, in a highway near the town of Calimto in Havana province.

An unconfirmed report said another policeman's body had been found in the same neighborhood.

U. S. PEACE POLICY HELD MISDIRECTED

Speaker at Institute Says World Must Unite To Outlaw Future Wars.

America's foreign policy as applied to maintenance of peace should be re-directed, according to Paul Harris, Jr., director of Peace Action, sponsored by the National Council for the Prevention of War, who spoke last night at the Southern Institute of International Relations, meeting at St. Luke's church here.

Mr. Harris said "war is like kidnapping—it is hated, it has been outlawed, it must be abolished. Just as kidnapping could not be stopped by separate state action, neither can war be stopped by separate national action."

"America alone cannot keep the peace," he said, "but America can be the obstacle to the creating of worldwide peace."

Outspoken, Mr. Harris maintained, must be one of "relieving tensions between us and other countries, of refusing to increase our armaments and of joining wholeheartedly in worldwide efforts to prevent war and to build a peaceful world."

Grover Clark, author of "The Great Wall Crumbles," will be the main speaker at the open lecture at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the parish room at the church. His subject will be "America and Japan in the Pacific."

Dr. John M. Walker, rector of St. Luke's church, will preside. Speakers at the lectures today will be Professor J. R. Huber, Paul Harris and Professor Andrew W. Cordier.

PARI-MUTUEL BETTING DEFEATED IN ALABAMA

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 12.—(AP)—The Alabama senate today defeated the Coleman bill legalizing horse racing with pari-mutuel betting by a 10-to-9 vote while the house was writing into the general revenue a $2,000,000 exemption from state, county and municipal taxes.

During the afternoon Governor Graves signed the Arnold bill increasing the pay of legislators from $4, to $6 a day, and carrying a retroactive future that give every member $138 for attending the first 69 days of the present session.

SLASH IS FEARED IN HOUSING FUNDS

Lethargy, Low Direct Labor Rates Cited as Possible Reasons.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—Concern over whether President Roosevelt will set aside all the $225,000,000 wanted by the Public Works Administration for slum clearance projects was manifested today by housing division officials.

The allocation was recommended by the works alignment board May 7, but presidential approval has not been forthcoming.

A hint was given in an official quarter that the allocation would be slashed. Two possible reasons were given: First, because of slow progress in the slum clearance program in the past two years; second, because the new projects would not provide as much direct labor as desired under the $4,000,000,000 relief program.

Condemnation proceedings on lands for certain sites have been suspended in several cases, it was said authoritatively.

Simultaneously, A. R. Cline announced that of 18 projects costing $65,073,280, contracts had been let on but five.

PAY CUT RESTORATION BY CITY IMPROBABLE

Committee Not Expected To Return 5 Per Cent Slash Made in January.

Restoration to city employees of a 5 per cent pay cut for January and February, amounting to $26,500, appeared unlikely last night on the eve of the meeting of the finance committee of council this afternoon.

A resolution introduced at last council meeting was intended to give back to the city workers the first two months' reduction in salary which was made for the purpose of supplementing the pension fund of the fire department. Since the cut was voted, the state legislature passed a pension law which makes the city fund unnecessary. Therefore, it was proposed that the cash be returned to the employees.

Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee, to which the resolution was referred by council, said last night he opposed the restoration and would do everything he could to stop it. Milam asserted Mayor Key is in accord with his views on the matter.

Though some adjustments are to be made in disbursements and income, the June finance sheet, already drawn, will be adopted by the committee today, Milam said. No radical change is contemplated.

FULL PARDON ASKED FOR LEA IN CAROLINA

State Parole Commission Hears Plea and Will Make Recommendation Shortly

RALEIGH, N. C., June 12.—(AP)—A pardon for Luke Lea, former Tennessee senator, serving a six-to-ten year sentence in the North Carolina prison for bank law violations, was asked today at a hearing before Edwin Gill, state parole commissioner. Claiming documentary evidence which he submitted showed Lea was innocent of the charges brought against him in the collapse of the Central Bank & Trust Company, of Asheville, J. M. Broughton, Raleigh attorney, asked a full pardon for his client. He also presented letters from General John J. Pershing, Speaker Joe Byrnes, Senators J. W. Bailey and Robert R. Reynolds and others asking clemency for the Tennesseean who was a World War colonel. Gill put into the record a letter from Judge M. V. Barnhill, the trial judge, opposing clemency. At the conclusion of the hearing Gill said it would be some time before he could lay his recommendation before Governor Ehringhaus. Gill has authority only to make a recommending to the governor who has the sole power to grant clemency. There is no pardon or parole board in North Carolina. Gill asked Broughton if he were authorized to speak for Lea as to whether a pardon would be acceptable to the prisoner. Broughton said he was not authorized to say, but he felt it would not and that Lea should have either an unconditional pardon or a commutation of sentence to free him at once.

DEALERS WARNED TO GET NEW FEDERAL LICENSES

Georgia retailers of whiskey, wine and beer must obtain their new federal licenses by July 1, W. E. Page, United States collector of internal revenue, warned yesterday.

Retailers selling whiskey or wine are required to pay a license fee of $25, while beer dealers are assessed $20. These licenses must be prominently displayed by the retailers, and failure to do so will result in arrest and a fine, Collector Page said.

There are approximately 2,500 beer dealers in the state, while licenses have been issued to 750 retailers for the sale of whiskey and wine.

Paper can be made from cornstalks but the product would cost more than paper made from wood, according to studies completed at the United States bureau of standards.

ATLANTAN CHAIRMAN OF A. I. B. COMMITTEE

Ethleen Lasseter Given Highest Honor by National Banking Organization.

The highest honor the American Institute of Banking can confer upon a woman was bestowed yesterday afternoon upon Miss Ethleen Lasseter, manager of the analysis department of the First National Bank of Atlanta, when she was selected national chairman of the women's committee of the institute. The election took place at the A. I. B. convention in Omaha. Miss Lasseter is the first southern woman ever to be accorded this high honor. The appointment places her in charge of all women's activities in the American Institute of Banking in the entire country. She succeeds Miss Ella V. Saunders, of Tenny Trust Company, Tenny, N. Y.

The new national chairman has been connected with the First National bank since August, 1917. She is a graduate of Girls' High school and the Atlanta Chapter of the American Institute of Banking, which is the educational section of the American Bankers' Association. For the past two years she has been chairman of the women's committee of the Atlanta chapter of the American Institute of Banking and was recently presented a gold watch in recognition of her service to the institute.

She is a recognized authority on accounting and analysis, is a licensed certified public accountant, being the only woman in Georgia who successfully passed the C. P. A. examination on first trial. Miss Lasseter is the second Atlanta woman to win recognition at the Omaha convention, the American Institute of Banking, Miss Elizabeth Lanford, of the Citizens & Southern National bank, yesterday won first prize of $500 in the national public speaking contest of the institute.

hand chewed gum and slouched near by.

Both seem amused.

Fitch read the complaint and asked her if she had an attorney.

"No," she answered.

"If it's all the same to the court, I'll waive a hearing and plead not guilty."

Both the Waleys, who had been represented as working with the government agents toward a solution of the $200,000 ransom kidnapping, seemed amused.

Waley also waived preliminary hearings.

The pleas of not guilty were puzzling to outsiders in view of justice department reports the Waleys had confessed, implicated Mahan and led officers to a cache of more than $90,000 of the ransom money in the mountains near Salt Lake City.

ARKANSAS DUO PLEAD NOT GUILTY IN "SLAVE" CASE

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., June 12.—(AP)—O'Dell Hudson and his wife, Dorothy, entered pleas of not guilty and waived hearing here today on federal charges in connection with the kidnapping of 13-year-old Lois Eden last December at McAlester, Okla.

Bonds of $2,000 for Hudson and $500 for the woman were set and the two committed to the Sebastian county jail to await an order for their removal to the eastern district of Oklahoma.

KIDNAPER'S WIFE CHARGES LASKA THREATENED HER

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 12.—(AP)—A kidnaper's wife told federal court jury today that Attorney Ben B. Laska, of Denver, threatened to have her throat cut if she did not carry out his orders in disposing of ransom money.

The testimony of Mrs. Clara Feldman, a government witness, was repeated during her cross-examination by Laska, one of two attorneys charged with conspiracy in the $200,000 ransom kidnapping July 22, 1933, of Charles Urschel, 11-month-old.

"I didn't say to you that I'd cut your throat, as the government has tried to show, did I?" Laska asked.

"Yes, you did," Mrs. Feldman insisted in a low voice. "You said to me that if I didn't take your instructions you'd have my throat cut."

Laska, counsel for Albert Bates, Mrs. Feldman's husband, and James C. Matthews, of Oklahoma City, counsel for Harvey Bailey, are accused of accepting ransom money as attorney for both Bates and Bailey. Bates is serving life prison terms.

The government contends that Edward Feldman, son of Mrs. Feldman, received $10,000 in ransom money from Laska and that Laska gave $1,000 of it to Matthews.

under the name of the new purchaser, the securities are confiscated and turned over to receivers for the American Bond & Share in Atlanta. The inspectors are likewise notified and are able to trace the securities back to the broker who purchased them from Bradley.

This was done in the case of the $2,000 in securities the American Bond & Share president sold in New York.

Final Capture Expected.

The inspectors believe that Bradley will be finally trapped through the sale of some of the securities and are keeping in close touch with the various transfer agents, Mr. Cole said. Just where the fugitive is at present the inspectors admit they do not know, but they do believe that sooner or later he will appear in one of the metropolitan centers where it is easier to dispose of the securities in his possession.

Just what securities Bradley took with him when he fled from Atlanta is not definitely known. It has been estimated by the receivers that he had anywhere from $10,000 to $50,000 worth of stocks and bonds he obtained from his victims.

NANKING SPURNS JAP ULTIMATUM

sake of peaceful Sino-Japanese relations in northeastern China.

The new governor of Hopei province, replacing the ousted Yu Hsueh-chung, must be friendly to Japan.

The political council, which began its extraordinary session yesterday afternoon, was preparing to discuss and adjourn without disclosing the issues discussed or decisions taken.

It was learned authoritatively, however, that the council had decided to refuse any written assurance of compliance with the Japanese demands thus injecting still more uncertainty into the already acute crisis. It was understood Japan had specified that the council should sign in behalf of the national government.

This startling development in the tense north China situation, coming as Hopei province authorities already were preparing to resist a virtual domination of that rich area to the Japanese military authorities, served to put an entirely new face upon the Sino-Japanese crisis.

Previously Japanese reports said the Chinese had accepted in full the demands presented May 29, which involved conceding to Nippon's army men almost complete command of Hopei.

800 JAPANESE SOLDIERS LANDED AT TIENSIN.

TIENSIN, China, June 12.—(AP)—Eight hundred new Japanese troops marched into Tientsin today to the cheers of Japanese while Chinese watched in dead silence.

Three Japanese airplanes, which are ordering Chinese troop movements, flew overhead as the soldiers disembarked from troop transport and marched to their barracks through the French and German concessions.

Japanese houses were bedecked with flags and triumphal arches spanned the streets.

CHIANG REQUESTS HO TO REMAIN IN OFFICE

NANKING, June 12.—(UP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was reported today to have requested General Ho Ying-chin, war minister now in north China, to resign his resignation and remain in office.

General Ho was reliably understood to have sought to resign because of his "humiliation" at having to accept for Nanking the Japanese demands ending Nanking's control temporarily in Peiping-Tientsin area.

Chiang remained in Cheng-Tu, in the far west, ostensibly "suppressing communists" in Szechuan province, and Nanking took no steps toward arousing further Japanese antipathy in the north.

There was no indication that the central political council, the national government's highest executive body, had initiated new anti-Japanese action, as reported abroad by other press associations.

From every point of view here, such a move was considered improbable. Nanking took no steps toward making every concession to the Japanese to prevent actual warfare in the northern trouble zones.

The Nanking officials prepared to receive the new Japanese embassy, Akira Ariyoshi, tomorrow. Aiyoshi arrived at Shanghai and was met by a cheering delegation of local Japanese residents and representatives of the watchtowers (foreign office).

The envoy said he hoped events in north China would not impede the new Chinese-Japanese friendly policy "which the Japanese public sincerely desires."

GENERAL HO QUILTS PEIPING FOR HANKOW.

PEIPING (Thursday), June 13.—(UP)—General Ho Ying-chin, Nanking war minister, departed for Hankow today by rail, going by way of Hankow, on the Yangtze river. A spokesman in the Chinese local headquarters flatly denied all reports abroad of new demands by the Japanese.

Members of the Japanese embassy branch in Shanghai told the United Press no new demands had been made and Japanese authorities there made the statement to Nippon Dempo News Agency.

NANKING IS AWAITING NEW JAPANESE DEMAND.

TOKYO (Thursday), June 13.—(UP)—A Shanghai dispatch of the Nippon Dempo News Agency today reported that the central political council of the Nanking Chinese government was awaiting presentation of a Japanese demand for dismissal of General Sung Che-tsun, Chinese commander in Chahar province, where four Japanese intelligence officers were detained last week.

GERMANY TO DRAW UP 5-YEAR NAVAL PLAN

Von Ribbentrop Expected To Win Authority To Seek Ship Agreement.

LONDON, June 12.—(AP)—A five-year building program for Reichsmarine Adolf Hitler's proposed new German fleet will be drawn up, naval circles indicated tonight, when Anglo-German naval talks resume here Friday.

Joaquim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's ambassador-extraordinary for the negotiations, will return to London from Berlin tomorrow, accompanied by his colleagues.

It was believed General von Ribbentrop, who has been in consultation with Hitler at the latter's Bavarian mountain retreat, was returning with authority to negotiate an agreement to be submitted to other naval powers, including the United States.

U. S. SINCERELY HOPEFUL OF SUCCESS IN LONDON.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(AP)—The United States said hopefully today it was "sincerely hopeful" the Anglo-German naval discussions in London may smooth the way for a world "limitation and reduction of naval armaments."

Undersecretary Phillips made known the government's attitude in a brief statement which said Great Britain had informed the state department "regarding the progress" of its naval conversations with Berlin. Phillips' statement was interpreted as lending United States encouragement to a general naval conference. But for the present, officials here professed to believe that the London discussions affect only the European naval situation.

MAYORS SEE TAX LOSS IN 15-MILL MAXIMUM

Key, in Message to Albany Convention, Urges Body to Broaden Its Activities.

ALBANY, Ga., June 12.—(P)—The possibility of loss of revenue, both to the state and to its cities, if the proposed constitutional amendment limiting property taxes to 15 mills is adopted, was discussed today by speakers addressing the Georgia Mayors' Association.

Reporting for the association's legislative committee, Zachary Arnold of Fort Gaines, urged that steps be taken to secure "proper allocation" of the funds to municipalities under the amendment.

He was followed by Dean Edgar H. Johnson, of the Emory University school of business administration, who predicted that a general sales tax will be necessary to provide the state with sufficient revenue if the proposed measure is approved.

The mayors applauded as E. D. Rivers, speaker of the Georgia House, lauded President Roosevelt's relief efforts in an address.

Rivers said the president's policy of placing humanity ahead of property rights warranted the support of all Americans.

Earlier today the association, opening its second annual convention, heard a message from its president, Mayor Key, of Atlanta. He was unable to attend the meeting because of illness and his letter was read by John White, Atlanta councilman.

Key Message Read. Mayor Key recommended that the organization broaden its activities and urged the members to determine what assistance Georgia's legislators would render their cities. He also suggested combining the offices of field representative and secretary, and stressed the need for careful study of the question of public taxation.

Key added that during the last session of the legislature mayors should have learned that "if municipalities are to be taken care of in the matter of taxation they must care for themselves."

"I have lived long," the message said, "but I have not yet lived long enough to see the legislature aid in giving a city or municipality revenue. To look to the legislature for remedy is a vain hope."

Mayor Key urged the co-operation of the counties and cities.

"That way we can get somewhere," he said. "The counties should be very sure of the attitude of the men they send to the general assembly toward the cities and towns."

Asserting that "to look to the legislature for additional revenue is a vain hope," he said some program must be worked out to insure a satisfactory plan for the support of city governments after the tax limitation amendment goes into effect. He said he felt certain the people would vote for the amendment.

"We have the assurance of the governor that if this amendment is adopted he will call the legislature in session and raise additional revenue. It seems to me a better plan would be to agree upon the program in advance."

Committee Report. Arnold in his committee report explained that the property tax limitation measure was an outgrowth of efforts by the mayors' association to secure a tax reform program, and he expressed belief it was the first step toward revision of Georgia's taxing system.

Discussions and addresses today dealt principally with the proposed amendments and with the effect the federal work-relief program will have on Georgia.

Those speaking on the work-relief program were: J. Houston Johnston, state PWA director; Erle Cocke, state director of the National Emergency Council; and Miss Gay B. Shepperson, relief administrator for Georgia.

Cocke, who is also state director for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, said that while more than 100 banks in Georgia were borrowing funds from the RFC a year ago, only three are borrowing now.

Dean Johnson said that if tax limitations are written into the state constitution, cities will have to be more efficient and economical in their expenditures and probably will have to eliminate some of their public services.

It will then be necessary for the state to provide revenues hitherto raised by local levies on real estate, said the educator.

Besides the general sales tax, he made the following suggestions "for attaining a practicable state system of taxation."

Another speaker on today's program was C. W. Ham, of the National Municipal League.

Mayor T. Semmes Walmesley, of New Orleans, is scheduled for an address tomorrow.

Co-operation Needed. Federal, state and local governments must co-operate in a program to rehabilitate the 200,000 individuals on relief in Georgia and to prevent future citizens from falling into similar circumstances, Miss Shepperson said.

The number now on relief represents one-half of what the figure was at the peak in February, 1934, and the relief bill in Georgia has cost the federal government more than $50,000,000 to date, Miss Shepperson reported.

J. Houston Johnston, state director of the Public Works Administration, said that since August, 1933, there has been allotted to Georgia for all classes of work under the work-relief program a total of approximately $30,000,000 for federal and non-federal projects, and that under the present program for expenditure of $4,800,000,000 in the nation, "it is estimated that Georgia's share will be between $90,000,000 and $100,000,000 for all purposes that come within the terms and conditions of the act."

He said that to speed the program, legal, engineering and finance experts had been assigned to the Atlanta PWA office from Washington, to expedite the handling of applications from Georgia.

EASTERN STAR ORDER NAMES MRS. JEWETT

MACON, Ga., June 12.—(P)—Mrs. Marcia Jewett, of Rossville, was elected worthy grand matron of the grand chapter, Order of Eastern Star of Georgia today, and W. A. Lynn, of Atlanta, was named worthy grand patron.

The associate grand patron, Dr. George Webber, of Milledgeville, who would have been advanced to the post, died last year.

Mrs. Pauline Dillon, of Atlanta, was named associate grand matron, and Mrs. Bessie Cashman, of Savannah, grand conductress.

Davis W. Lane, of Waycross, reported for the credentials committee that there were 365 qualified voters out of the 1,000 delegates and visitors attending the convention.

Other committee reports were made by A. F. Morris, of Savannah, and A. C. Duden, of Macon.

AAA IS ATTACKED BY GEORGIA MILL

Covington Textile Plant Seeks Refund of Cotton Processing Tax.

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 12.—(P)—Two suits seeking refund of more than $150,000 and interest on cotton processing taxes were filed here today by Covington Mills, of Covington, Ga., a textile plant. Both suits attack constitutionality of the Agricultural Adjustment Act under which the processing tax was levied.

The suits, filed in Columbus division of United States district court, named W. E. Page, collector of internal revenue for Georgia, as defendant.

In both suits, in which the mills alleged the tax was collected on a proclamation issued by Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace containing no statement of facts nor grounds for the action, the mills also seek interest on the processing taxes, paid during 1933, 1934 and so far in 1935.

Your 10 daily starts waste your money—unless your gasoline has these 3 different Kinds of Power

EVEN on sizzling summer days—many of your starts are relatively "cold."

That's because the temperature around your engine quickly drops from its normal 150 degrees after the engine stops running.

You start your engine about 3500 times a year. So it's easy to see, then, how a quick-starting gasoline can SAVE YOU MONEY.

But a really economical gasoline must have two additional kinds of power as well—power for HARD PULLING and power for STEADY RUNNING. Moreover, it must have these 3 different kinds of power in PERFECT BALANCE.

Super-Shell is the FIRST truly balanced gasoline. And so it saves you money in 3 WAYS. That's why thousands of motorists make Super-Shell their regular gasoline.

STARTING—With its even volatility, Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline on every "cold" start. (Even in summer, your engine is relatively "cold" after being idle an hour.)

PULLING—Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline in 10 minutes of hard pulling, or rapid accelerating.

RUNNING—Super-Shell can save up to a cupful of gasoline in every hour of steady running, many motorists report—thus saving on LONG RUNS as well as on short trips.

THE TAX INCREASE THREAT

Despite repeated assurances that the country need expect no increases in federal taxes, proposals are now being made in congress to raise taxation in one form or another.

Certainly the taxes paid in the last tax bill are high enough for the country to bear while it is still trying to emerge from the effects of the depression. The effort to increase the burden should be squelched by those who realize that in such a move lies the danger of the loss of much of the progress that has been made toward recovery.

Business is now engaged in a vital effort at readjustment to new conditions and to forge forward to better times for both industry and labor. A tax increase at this time would be harmful.

Again we say that congress can best serve the country by adjourning, going home, giving the people a rest from uncertainty, and business a chance!

The most vital need of the country now is the ending of uncertainty, and nothing can contribute as much to that end as the adjournment of congress.

STRANGE EVENTS IN CHINA

The underlying facts in governmental moves among eastern nations are always shrouded with mystery and their real significance is made difficult to fathom by the propaganda of which the orientals are masters.

The present Sino-Japanese situation is no exception to the rule, and the sudden refusal of the Nanking government to accept the Japanese demands after they had apparently been agreed to further complicates the situation.

About all the world knows is that representatives of Tokyo and Nanking have engaged in a series of conferences at which the Japanese submitted demands to the Chinese, the exact nature of which have not been revealed, and that the Chinese armies are evacuating Hopei province, in which Peking is located, leaving this rich territory apparently to the domination of Japan.

The northern part of Hopei was demilitarized by the agreement reached between China and Japan following the fighting in Jehol and the addition of that province to the new state of Manchukuo, this step having been taken to assure against trouble by raids over the border by irresponsible Chinese "generals" at the head of roving troops.

Alarm is expressed by some experts on Far Eastern affairs—most of them, however, being far removed from the scene of the present developments—that the latest Japanese move is a step in a well defined policy to conquer China by piecemeal. Others hold that it is a move aimed at the creation of a new state similar to Manchukuo out of the three provinces comprising North China.

Either is possible, but not probable, in view of the friendly relations of the past 12 months between Tokyo and Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the Chinese armies and dictator of the Nanking government, and the gradual subsidence during the period of the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods. It is also significant that the Chinese in this instance have entirely refrained from the customary cry of "thief" whenever an attack looms from the Japanese. If, as is charged, Japan is now boldly "stealing" a slice of Chinese territory, the silence from all Chinese sources is difficult to understand. It can be explained only by the existence of conditions and agreements that have not become known.

Further mystery surrounds the reason for Chiang Kai-shek to be off in remote western provinces fighting communist war lords while such a critical condition exists as a result of the Japanese demands.

It is certain that the present situation was precipitated by the militarists of Japan over the protest of the diplomatic branch of the Tokyo government, again emphasizing the trouble-making possibilities arising out of the fact that the Japanese cabinet has no control over the army and navy, the leaders of which report only to the throne.

If the situation is the result of a determination by the militarists to devour China bit by bit, only trouble is ahead for Japan. The Chinese have been conquered many times, but in the long run, their policy of passive resistance has never failed to defeat their conquerors.

A BLOW AT THE UNDERWORLD

The quick conviction and subsequent sentence imposed on Walter Cutcliffe, avowedly the "king" of the lotteries and other rackets in Atlanta, is a serious blow to the underworld that has come into life in Atlanta during the past few years.

Cutcliffe was among the first to seize upon the number racket as a source from which to secure unearned money from gullible city "suckers." He has been arrested and convicted on numerous occasions, but only one of his convictions has stuck to the extent of his having served time for his bold and continued flouting of the law. On one occasion he ran afoul of the federal law and as a result served a term in the federal penitentiary.

Some of his sentences he has escaped by paying fines; still another is now in the higher courts on appeal, a recourse which will, as usual, be taken with his latest conviction.

Not only should every effort be made to expedite the hearings on these appeals in order that the sentences of the courts may be put into effect, but the police should launch a determined war against his confederates and competitors and bring them to the bar.

Only by this method can the lottery racket be broken up. When the solicitors and clerks of these rackets are locked up, others spring up to take their places, but when the higher-ups—the men who must have large liquid assets in order to meet the daily "pay-offs" are jailed—a blow is struck at the vitals of the lottery racket.

THE YELLOW LIGHT

It is a moot question if it would not be wise for Atlanta to eliminate the yellow light in its street-crossing signals, retaining only the red and green, stop and go lights.

The purpose of the yellow light is to clear a street crossing of any automobiles, street cars, other vehicles or pedestrians who have crossed the line and should have right of way against traffic of any kind from right or left, and if this primary purpose of the light were strictly observed its usefulness would be of great value.

The yellow light should be a "stop" sign to any motorist who can see it as he approaches a crossing, but too many drivers regard it as a warning to speed up and "beat the red light," while approximately the same proportion of drivers regard it as a signal to start their cars as speedily as possible, causing pedestrians to run and danger of accidents with other cars.

Atlanta has not enough traffic officers to man the street crossings of main arteries beyond the strictly downtown district, and as a result motorists have become so heedless of possible danger that they not only pay little heed to the real purpose of the yellow light, but frequently "take a chance" and cross a street against a red light.

Atlanta motorists on tours of pleasure and business find crossing regulations rigidly enforced in many cities, and while traffic officers are inclined to be lenient to "foreign" cars, drivers of every state are supposed to know what the crossing signal lights are for, and violators of crossing regulations get little sympathy from traffic officers.

Atlanta needs a stringent crusade against this growing danger, similar to that which was made against those who ignored boulevard stops. There are still many who ignore these stops, but their number has not become appreciably fewer.

New York puts up a case for the billion dollars it asks from the government. It is spending $300 a week to feed birds in the parks.

Paris reports a revival of frou-frou style. But does the new generation know about pinning newspapers under the skirt to simulate taffeta?

If the Italo-Ethiopian argument is to be the long-predicted radio war, we must sell ourselves for "O Sole Mio" and minstrel numbers.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Herr Hitler's Speech Once More.

The speech made by the German chancellor before his parliament in which every man, except Hugenberg and Papen, were uniform, has had no important repercussions. Herr Hitler spoke about disarmament, but he would under no circumstances even consider a reduction in military effectiveness in the reich. In other words, disarmament for the others and not for the reich.

One of the "positive" points in his harangue dealt with killing in the future. Why should the whole world be involved if two nations have for quarrel? He said in fact, "Why not let them fight it out? Why not let the immixture of others? This was a flank attack upon the system of alliances and pacts of mutual assistance."

The proposal sounds quite interesting, as Herr Hitler pointed out: If the states don't mix in a personal quarrel between two states, but a but and of some importance, Germany has a personal quarrel at present with Lithuania. The chancellor, however, did not say that. He said that the Lithuanians in a most bitterly violent manner have been immixing with the reich in the past. Then Germany in a quick succession of wars defeated Denmark and took Schleswig-Holstein, defeated Austria and took Austria, and defeated France and took Alsace-Lorraine. The theory of non-immixture by others is a fine theory—for the aggressor.

What Does Germany Want?

Wladimir D'Ormesson, one of the ablest of French political observers, asks this question and proceeds to answer it on the strength of available data. M. D'Ormesson, I should add, has no left-wing tendencies. He writes for Le Figaro, the great French conservative liberal in France. In the first place Germany wants virtually the whole of Ukraine. By taking this she would get a great deal of land, and she hopes to create herself a market and to find an outlet for her crowded population. Germans will colonize the Ukraine. Poland is an ally for the time being, but Germany sees in Poland a potential enemy, who must be crushed and wiped out eventually. The Poles are fully aware of this. The Poles dread nothing more than that Germany should be victorious in an eventual war with Russia, for they realize that their own hand would be forced. Germany wants all of Austria. This is no secret to anybody. Furthermore, a good part of Czechoslovakia. This is no secret either. Germany wants the whole of the Germanic people. Ultimately, Germany wants far more. Ultimately, if the first part of the program were realized, Germany would get far more, for once victorious in the first instance, there will be no holding back.

On the maps of the Pan-German Bund recently published in Berlin and of which I have a copy before me, you find that Holland, the Flemish part of Belgium and the whole of the Germanic people are to be incorporated into the future German empire. In other words, the German empire of the future, as these people dream it, is to have ethnic frontiers. All, or nearly all, the Germanic people are to be brought into the fold. Some water will flow under the Rhine bridges before that program is realized, though.

Health Talks

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

VITAMINS AND COMPLEXION.

When you sacrifice health, my dear Dumb Dora, you have lost your beauty. I repeat, health is the essence of beauty.

One characteristic symptom of pellagra, a nutritional disease due to inadequate intake of vitamin G, is a roughening of the skin which resembles the appearance of an old sunburn. Probably many cases of so-called "eczema" or "psoriasis" are really instances of this degenerative change from a partial deficiency in intake of vitamin G.

McCullum and Simmonds described the better-than-average nutritional condition induced and maintained through an extended period of life by the more liberal use of "the protective foods" in the diet as "the preservation of the characteristics of youth."

Langstroth noted that the skin of individuals whose diet has long been poor in vitamins became sallow, coarse, thick and harsh or dry, and that when the intake of vitamins was increased the skin and complexion improved steadily, and the eyes, which had been dull gray or congested, became brighter.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

MORALE

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The steam of enthusiasm seems to be running a bit lower than the country realizes inside the New Deal boiler. The old pressure zeal for high-gauge action is not what it once was. Anyone who has called on any dozen of the stokers in the last few days can see the situation.

It is not entirely the supreme court decision which is causing the fires to run low, although that undoubtedly played a part. Nor is it the enthusiastic activity of the republican bucket brigade, although that also has had a dampening influence.

To get the right slant on what is happening, you have to go back a bit. President Roosevelt started reforming his New Deal from within about six months ago. He moderated NRA, got Johnson out; reformed the AAA, got Tugwell out; altered policies and personnel gradually and mildly, in preparation for a new New Deal.

Now, suddenly, a rush of economic as well as legal, political and personal developments appears to have taken his reformation entirely out of his hands.

TROUBLES You can see it best in the AAA. There the loss of foreign cotton markets has thrown the AAA program out of gear. It will have to be reorganized from this standpoint as well as from the legal standpoint. At the headquarters of the new works program, you will find Frank Walker is ill as a result of overwork. He has been unable to get the thing going.

At Federal Housing, cliques are contesting with each other about how to proceed, while the administrator is serving only temporarily. At the Securities and Exchange Commission, you will get defensive arguments about the constitutionality of their phase. And at the Export-Import Banking House of George Peek, where no business is being done, you will meet with denials that Mr. Peek's activities now are entirely useless.

WADS To give you a rough and adequate idea of the situation at NRA: A number of young men in the compliance division of NRA were sitting around themselves the other day by firing paper wads at a window across the street. The occupant of the residence became annoyed, called the division on the telephone, said she wanted to make a complaint. NRA's young men responded: "Sorry, madame, the NRA isn't taking any more complaints."

LIBERALS More important phases of the same spirit are evident in the NRA. The members of the liberal element of New Dealers. They came here originally full of eagerness for reform, willing to work long hours, at ordinary wages, for their various causes. Now you will hear a number of them wondering whether it is worth while talking about getting outside jobs.

An out-of-town labor writer, returning from a trip, talked to the most important men in this group and got the opinion that the country has greater hopes for the New Deal just now than the New Dealers themselves. Said he: "When I asked them about present policies, they generally expressed the opinion that these would not do much good. And when I found some particular policy for which they had any hope, they said its value would be only temporary."

HOPE All these things may represent only a passing phase. Enthusiasm and zeal are never stationary. But it surely indicates Mr. Roosevelt has more problems on his hands than those which are evident on the surface. There will be no opportunity for a cruise this summer, if the New Deal is to be made the active, living, breathing force it once was.

JOBS The best national democratic authorities are now saying that Governor-General Frank Murphy will return from the Philippines and run for governor of Michigan next year. Why he would do it, no one knows. He has probably the best job in government. It pays $18,000 a year and carries two castles and two yachts.

Incidentally, the rumor that Attorney General Cummings might take the post are unfounded. He won't.

HINT Commerce Secretary Roper is supposed to have picked a new assistant secretary already, although there is no vacancy. The new one is supposed to be J. Monroe Johnson, of North Carolina, prominent Legionnaire.

The fact is that, at the time the choice was made a few days ago, Roper hoped to get rid of one of his assistant secretaries, but did not know how.

To Estimate the Fiddler's Bill, Count the Number of Dances

By Robert Quillen

Plutarch tells of a grim old Roman who disciplined himself by doing without water until he was very thirsty, then taking a drink in his mouth and spewing it out again—and telling no one what he had done.

What good did it do? Well, what good is one when a man takes a 10-mile walk or plays 36 holes of golf or boxes several fast rounds? He proves to himself that he is physically fit—that he is strong and sound.

And by any form of self-denial that tests his will by overcoming desire, he proves to himself that he is master of his soul—that his character is still strong and sound.

It is no mean achievement. It demonstrates his manhood as no exhibition of physical prowess can. For the lowest and least commendable of men may be a superb physical specimen, but no weakling can overcome desire.

The wisest of books says that one who conquers himself is greater than one who takes a city.

If you think that an exaggeration, compare the business of commanding troops to that of quitting the life-long habit of using tobacco, and measure the degree of self-control and determination and long-suffering fortitude required for each.

Self-indulgence, whatever its nature, is weakness. It is drifting—taking the easy way—following the course of least resistance. And it destroys character as certainly and as quickly as want of effort softens muscles.

The heats of the field and forest have no rule of behavior except that of indulging their appetites and passions. Primitive men were equally sensual. And every forward step that man has made, in decency and honor and the spiritual elements of civilization, has been the result of conquering emotions and desires that made him brother to the beast.

It is old-fashioned moralizing, but none the less true, that the easy way of self-indulgence leads to swiftest destruction.

In the life of an individual or a nation, the way of survival is the hard, unpopular way of duty, sacrifice, discipline and self-denial.

If we had learned self-control and self-denial six years ago, we wouldn't be eating hushes now.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Town-Bred Warned.

NEW YORK, June 12.—At this time of year, when the children are leaving school for the summer and parents are thinking of turning them loose among the birds and bees and flowers, it will be well to consider whether the physical benefits are worth the risk to their morals. I know time was when the city was looked upon as a sink hole of iniquity, and the peril to the young, even up to the age of 25, under the baleful light of the lamp posts and saloon windows, was dwelt upon, if not slightly exaggerated, by stage and pulpit.

There was said to be a broken heart for every light on Broadway, which would not have been an excessive number of broken hearts at that primitive stage of outdoor advertising, and the bard from Indiana sang a homesick song about the banks of the Wabash, where in recent years the Dillinger boy grew up to immortal fame and was shot into a grave not far from the banks of that famous aymore-lined stream. Little did the laureate of the cracker-barrel appreciate the possibilities of his barefoot boy with the single suspender, but the world, especially the police, came to acknowledge his greatness before he was laid to rest by his mourning pa and admiring neighbors.

Teaching the City Slicker.

As I recall the country back in the dirt road and Tom Show days, however, it seems to me that there was very little that the so-called urchin of the city streets could tell his cousin from the signal stops. We had our Sickle and Sheaf on the main street where much of the time the constable stood manfully to the bar. The water tank down by the depot was a gathering place for simple street crackerers working the post office circuit. And the big boys, the large youths, as soon as they were old enough to earn a few dollars and explore life, on Saturday afternoons filled the train for the city where they cheered the koochee of the Devil theater, got drunk and, to hear them tell it, fell into sin more grievously.

There was a quiet, outward simplicity in the country, however, which was mistaken for virtue. The city was frisky, and therefore vile. The villagers, for their reading, preferred the farm publications and the city papers had not yet pushed their circulation fields much beyond the city limits. The radio was not yet, automobiles were always breaking down and therefore rare and coveted, and the roads were a menace to the horses' hoofs.

Country Unsafe For Townies.

But the will to mischief was not less active among the peasants and with the quickening of communication, the country has become a region where city people may send their children and themselves, only at some risk. The fact that woods are deep and houses and policemen rather widely spaced probably contributed something to the development of the criminal trade.

At any rate, the late Lega Diamond and other sophisticated city boys found no lack of apt local agents when they took to the wide open spaces with their slot machines and beer. The rattle of the city was heard in the night in the roadside bar and grill in many a stirring exploit. The small-town book-maker is a standard character in the east of the country where he reads the big owner of the old-time prohibition speakeasy, in regions where the law forbids the return of the city's whole-some saloon, is still conducting his old-time prohibition speakeasy as always.

But I am thinking of the development of really important public enemies out in the wide open spaces where in the last few years the most noted criminals in the land have risen to claim recognition.

Country's Dishonor Roll.

There were not only the Dillinger boys, but Clyde Barrow, Fred Barker, Alvin Karpis, and other kidnapers, bank robbers and gun fighters of commanding prominence as well as a whole school of mischief-makers, some slightly less distinguished. They were all simple hay-shakers, country-bred and corn-fed but fit colleagues of Al Capone, except that they were more brash and lacked the diplomacy to organize the local statesmen and police as Capone, the master, did. May be it was just the country boys' contempt for the city man's fancy ways.

As matters are, however, the barefoot boy grown up in giving the country people who are raising children to consider the watchful eye of the corner cop and the respectable bartender who will not sell them eye until they have had a drink, and the city man's contempt for the country boy's contempt for the city man's fancy ways.

BREWERY EXECUTIVE PLEADED BY SURVEY.

Jacob G. Schmitz, official of the Joseph Schlitz Brewing Company, of Milwaukee, was in Atlanta for a few days' visit the first part of this week.

While here Mr. Schmitz made a brief survey of the beer trade in Atlanta and the surrounding territory. He was highly pleased with the results of the survey and commented on the excellent distribution of Schlitz beer, which has been secured by McCullough Bros., 9 Produce Row, distributors.

Mr. Schmitz was impressed with business conditions throughout the territory, and noted the low number of store vacancies here.

STODDARD'S TURKEYS.

Herbert Stoddard is supposed to be on the way to France by now. I suppose he will have to wait to protest his calling special attention to his work in the wild turkey. It has been published as a part of the transactions of the twenty-first American game conference anyway; all of you can read the paper in that volume if you like. I am interested in what he says about management of wild turkey stock, because we here in Georgia are faced with the problem of producing turkeys "where they ain't," and believe you me, it is no job to be taken lightly. Whoever does it will have his own hands and those of his associates full to overflowing.

There has been a lot of agitation in the past for the practice of putting out domestic turkeys to mate with wild birds, in efforts to bolster the population. Stoddard deplores this and offers suggestions for alternative methods. In discussing the grade of wild turkey stock in the southeastern states, he says:

"There are few places the stock is obviously impure, either through the interbreeding with domestic turkeys which enjoy semi-free range, or because of the very poor practice of putting out domestic turkey hens to mate with wild gobblers, in attempts to increase the wild stock."

Tom Linder has a Bulletin

Of aid to farmers full; But he may have to pull it in Unless he drops the bull.

Governor Talmadge's favorite brand of humor is O. P. (Other People's) to you. He admitted as much during his speech before the independent theater operators' convention in the Piedmont.

He told a story about a liquor hiker who called at his office in the capitol one day last year. The man, he said, explained he had a truck load of hi-jacked liquor he had just brought up from Florida and "some guy in a garage" near the Henry Grady hotel had told him the governor's office would be a good place to sell it. He assured the governor most of it was good liquor.

"I told him," said Gene, "the guy in the garage" had been kidding him. Because there was no one in my office except Adjutant General and myself. He said he would come back another time.

"I told him," said Gene, "the guy in the garage" had been kidding him. Because there was no one in my office except Adjutant General and myself. He said he would come back another time.

The Blonde And The Seal.

Soon after the exposure of the American Bond and Share Corporation and disappearance of its president, R. R. Andrews, Neil Andrews, assistant district attorney, received a telephone call. Voice on the wire asked if Mr. Andrews would like to have a corporate seal of the American Bond and Share? Mr. Andrews said he would and to please bring it to his office.

A taxi driver walked in and placed the seal of the American Bond and Share company, an affiliate of the parent company, on his desk.

"Got a call last night from an apartment house on Boulevard, the taxi driver said. Man and blonde got into my cab and drove around. They were quarreling. While we were passing a vacant lot they told me to stop and they pitched something out into the street. I gave them my other address to take 'em. I did, they paid me and left."

"I noticed where the thing they pitched away fell and drove back to the vacant lot. After a while I found a while I found it and this is it. Thought you might like it."

So what?

LABOR PROTESTS FEE AT SWIMMING POOLS

Federation Seeks Elimination of Afternoon Admission for Children.

An appeal will be made to city council to eliminate the 10-cent afternoon charge for children at the city swimming pools by the Atlanta Federation of Trades, it was decided last night at the semi-monthly meeting of the group.

The federation instructed its executive committee to present the appeal before the council at an early meeting, terming the 10-cent charge "obnoxious commercialism on children." This year is the first time the charge has been in effect in the afternoon.

The federation also went on record as favoring the enactment by congress of measures of social legislation now pending. Included in the bill endorsed was the Wagner-Connery labor dispute bill.

CHURCHES PLEDGE FUND FOR WESLEY

Gifts Come in From Georgia Methodists To Avert Foreclosure Here.

Methodist churches throughout Georgia are pledging their support in the campaign to save Wesley Memorial church from foreclosure it was announced yesterday by the Rev. Felton Williams, the pastor.

The campaign, which has "Save Wesley Memorial Church For Methodism" as its slogan, was launched last week to raise $42,000 and thus avert foreclosure of a mortgage held by outside interests on the property.

The sum of $10,000 is needed within the next 60 days to pay unpaid principal and interest due. Methodist churches throughout the state have been requested by Bishop W. N. Ainsworth and W. A. Candler to subscribe that sum at once and thus avert foreclosure proceedings.

The Rev. Williams recently visited the district conference at Rome and was assured the Rome district of the Methodist church would do its share to save the Atlanta edifice to the conference. Churches throughout the state are taking up collections and forwarding them to H. Y. McCord Jr., treasurer of the Wesley Memorial fund, and many individuals are following suit.

STATE'S AID ASKED FOR CITY PROJECT

Funds Sought in Effort To Eliminate Grade Crossing Here.

A renewed appeal to the state highway department to aid the city in purchasing right-of-way for work-relief road projects was sent to Chairman Eugene Wilburn yesterday by Ed A. Gilliam, mayor pro tem.

Gilliam asked that the state department furnish $72,886 with which to buy right-of-way and restore property damaged in the elimination of the grade crossing at Marietta street and North avenue.

His letter to the highway chairman said $44,771 is needed to acquire right-of-way, and $28,115 for adjustment of buildings. Mayor Key had written the department also about the matter but no reply has been received at the mayor's office.

The mayor pro tem. pointed out that the city is in no financial position to raise the money and that Thomas H. MacDonald, chairman of the bureau of public roads, has said that the funds supplied through his department cannot be used for those purposes.

The Marietta street-North avenue grade crossing has long been exceedingly dangerous to motorists, several persons having been killed at this point.

Still hopeful of obtaining adequate federal aid for Georgia's unpaid school teachers, M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, will leave for Washington today for a final conference with Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator.

Dr. Collins expects to confer with Hopkins either tomorrow or Saturday, and at that time will make a final plea to have payment of federal funds to rural teachers made retroactive to February 1.

Federal funds were placed at the disposal of Georgia school districts without money to pay their teachers, but a retroactive date of April 19 and various districts in need of aid are unable to qualify.

Less than 75 school districts have filed application with Miss Gay B. Shepperson, FERA administrator in Georgia, for the federal aid, but to date none have qualified and no checks have been sent out to the school teachers. Hopkins has refused to change the retroactive date, but Superintendent Collins believes when the Georgia situation is thoroughly explained to him he will change the date to February 1. This would enable a large number of school districts to qualify and would release approximately $1,600,000 to school teachers, most of them unpaid since February 1.

FORMER ATLANTIAN BURIED IN ANNISTON

ANNISTON, Ala., June 12.—(AP)—Funeral services for Mrs. Delane Adair, 36, formerly of Anniston and Atlanta, were held here today, followed by burial in Oxford cemetery. Mrs. Adair died in Chicago Monday.

She is survived by a son, Delane Jr.; two brothers, Dudley and W. H. McClure, both of Anniston; two sisters, Mrs. L. P. Tyson, Anniston, and Mrs. Frank Rhodes, Olathe, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McClure, Anniston.

TALMADGE NAMED DEFENDANT IN SUIT

Governor Talmadge was named defendant in a suit filed in Fulton superior court asking that a deed to 290 acres of farm land in Telfair county be set aside on the ground that it is a forgery. The suit, which also names Mrs. L. A. Williams, of DeKalb county, as defendant, was filed by Mrs. L. J. Wilder, of Roswell.

Mrs. Wilder contends that she was negotiating with Mrs. Williams for a trade of real estate properties, and made the deed to the Telfair property to Mrs. Williams, but that the trade could not be consummated because Mrs. Williams' property was involved in litigation.

The complainant alleges that she later discovered that Governor Talmadge had purchased the property from L. P. Flowers, described as an agent of Mrs. Williams, and that the name of the grantee was changed from Mrs. Williams to that of Eugene Talmadge. She alleges on information and belief that Talmadge paid Flowers $1,000 for the land.

ROBERT MURRAY, 70,
IS FOUND DROWNED*Body of Retired Contractor Discovered in Lake Near Home.

Robert Murray, 70, retired Atlanta contractor, of 22 Lakewood avenue, Peachtree Heights, was found yesterday morning drowned in a small lake adjoining the residence. He had been missing since early in the night and the body was recovered by Fulton county police, who dragged the lake. Mr. Murray had celebrated his seventieth birthday April 13, but had been confined to his bed by illness for the last several months and, according to his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Crossland, had suffered intense pain. The lake in which Mr. Murray was drowned is shallow and is purely ornamental. Mrs. Crossland expressed the belief, according to police reports, that her father could not have fallen into it accidentally.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Brandon-Bond & Condon with Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby officiating. Burial will be in Stone Mountain cemetery.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smile at the decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything. What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our food can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and 8% of our food decays in our 33 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every 45 minutes.

When our friends smile at our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped scold, don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. If "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—25¢. D1934, C.M.C.O.

CANADIAN PACIFIC*WREATHAM GATHRIGHT TO BE BURIED FRIDAY*Widely Known Former Atlanta Western Electric Co.

Funeral services for Wreatham E. Gathright, executive of the Western Electric Company at 195 Broadway, New York city, who died at his home in Summit, N.J., Tuesday night, will be held in Atlanta tomorrow morning.

Mr. Gathright spent most of his life in Atlanta, where his active participation in business and social life won for him a host of friends. He was born at Gilmer, Texas, in 1855, and educated in the public schools at Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta. He graduated at Boys' High school in 1903. His first work was with the Atlanta & West Point Railroad, and in 1908 he entered the employ of the Western Electric Company as a clerk in its Atlanta branch.

He worked his way up through the organization there, becoming head of the Atlanta branch in 1921, in that position directing the company's distribution service in nine southern states.

In 1929 he went to St. Louis as head of all branches west of the Mississippi, and four years later went to New York headquarters as general manager of distribution in the east. In that capacity he had charge of the eastern chain of distributing offices and warehouses through which the Western Electric Company furnishes supplies to the telephone companies of the Bell System.

In 1935, Mr. Gathright married Grace Doyle. He is survived by her and their two children, Gayle and Wreatham Edgar, Jr.; also by his mother, Mrs. T. W. Gathright, and a sister, Mrs. E. A. Clark, both of Atlanta, and a brother, M. S. Gathright, of Detroit.

He was a member of the Piedmont Masonic lodge and of the Scottish Rite and Naarab Temple in Atlanta, as well as of the Machinery Union, Local 100, and the Brook County Club, Summit, N. J. He was a Presbyterian.

Funeral services will be held at Spring Hill at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

'SCOTTSBORO CASE'
WRIT TURNED DOWN*Judge Overrules Prisoners'
Plea for Liberty.

The fact that there was no negro on the jury which convicted Carlos Cartino, negro, given a five-year sentence in federal court at Birmingham, Ala., March 5, 1934, does not entitle him to his freedom, despite the United States supreme court decision in the Scottsboro, Ala., case, it was decided yesterday by Judge E. Marvin Underwood in the district federal court here.

Cartino, found guilty of stealing interstate freight, and confined in the Atlanta federal prison, sought a writ of habeas corpus on the ground there were no negroes on either the grand jury that indicted him or the jury that heard the case. He cited the Scottsboro case as the basis for a claim that he was illegally convicted.

The government, however, introduced records to show that names of 66 negroes were placed in the jury box at the term of court at which Cartino was convicted, and Judge Underwood ruled that the fact that none was drawn for service did not invalidate the proceedings.

PROCESSING TAX LIMIT*IS EXTENDED BY U. S.

Extension of the period in which the federal cotton processing tax may be paid by cotton mill owners was announced yesterday by W. Eugene Page, collector of internal revenue.

Heretofore, mill operators have been required to file a report within 30 days after opening a bale of cotton, and to pay the processing tax within 30 days after filing the report.

Under the new ruling, the mill owners can pay the tax within 60 days after reporting the processing of the bale of cotton, Mr. Page said.

This change will prove a boon to mill men who pile up large inventories and who find 30 days too short a period in which to dispose of their product and thus obtain funds with which to pay the processing tax.

The tax is 4 cents per pound of cotton.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY*FOR MRS. FRANK WORD

Mrs. Frank Word, 76, of 298 Oxford place, N. E., died Tuesday en route to Grady hospital after she had been stricken with a sudden attack on the street. She had been prominently identified for a number of years with activities of the Kirkwood Baptist church and was the owner of a number of real estate parcels in the city.

Survivors include four sons, Frank Word Jr. of Atlanta; M. K. Word, of Hogshead, and W. B. Word, of Atlanta, and one daughter, Mrs. A. E. Hammond, of Washington, D. C.

Services will be held at 9:30 o'clock this morning at the chapel of Harry G. Poole, with the Rev. H. H. Shirley officiating. Burial will follow in the Hogshead, Ga., cemetery.

COTTON ALLOTMENTS*DEADLINE ON JUNE 15

June 15 has been set as closing date for acceptance of applications for allotments of cotton under the Bankhead act, it is announced by G. V. Cunningham, state chairman, who has supplied county agents with forms to be used in applying for quotas. Fulton county farmers may receive their blanks from S. D. Trout, county agent.

More than 130,000 contracts for voluntary adjustment of cotton acreage have been made by Georgia farmers according to figures of the agricultural Adjustment Administration and it is estimated that more than 95 per cent of the acreage in the state eligible to be covered by contracts is included.

Former Atlantan Dead*WREATHAM E. GATHRIGHT.*PROPER DEFENSE
URGED BY MELTON*Legion Leader Addresses
Flag Day Audience at Decatur on War Prevention.

Quimby Melton, Griffin newspaper editor and southern vice commander of the American Legion, told a Flag Day audience in Decatur yesterday that an "adequate national defense" and passage of the universal draft act would "give America a 100 per cent insurance policy against future wars."

He said the American Legion, "despite the charges of many that it is a militaristic organization, is truly the greatest peace-promoting organization. Members of the legion do not want another war. They know war stripped of all its glamor, and standing in the way of progress."

"But they do not want America unprepared, for they know full well that to be unprepared is to invite war. There are 'bully' nations just as there are 'bully' boys."

The Legion leader said, "it is sad but true that most of the so-called civilized world either hates or envies America," and asked:

"Why should we disarm and leave America undefended against those who hate or envy us?"

The speaker said he regarded as the "real problem of the day" in the United States the fact that boys and girls graduating from high schools and colleges every year are "finding it more and more impossible to secure employment. He offered as a solution to this the deportation of some 10,000,000 aliens who have at one time expressed the slightest desire to become American citizens."

He said of the 10,000,000 aliens, 3,500,000 were in America illegally; 1,500,000 are on relief rolls and 4,000,000 are gainfully employed. Their deportation, he said, would leave jobs open to American citizens, would save relief money and "at the same time, get rid of a large majority of the subversive propaganda artists that honeycomb America."

INFLATION IS SEEN*BY ROGER W. BABSON

BOSTON, June 12.—(AP)—Roger W. Babson, widely-known statistician, today warned business men to prepare for inflation.

"Quit worrying, forget Washington. Prepare for inflation," he said in a speech prepared for delivery at a Boston Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

"Inflation of some kind surely is coming," he said. "Our money is worth only 60 cents abroad. It is only a question of time when it will be worth only 50 cents or much less in the United States."

TOWN MARSHAL SAVES*PRISONER FROM MOB

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., June 12.—(AP)—Saved from lynching after a band of 30 irate men and boys, armed on a shaky bedstead with a noose ready, Raymond Curry, 19-year-old negro, was in jail at Elizabethtown today awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to assault Mrs. Esther Jolly, 18, a bride of two months.

Town Marshal Burt Hodges and Dr. Maher Speevack, of Munfordsville, rescued the negro from the barn of Henry Jolly, the victim's father-in-law, where the men had made ready for an impromptu hanging.

Long Hunt for Slayers*Lands Two Men in Jail

The unceasing efforts of a wife over a period of two years to apprehend the slayers of her husband resulted yesterday afternoon in the arrest of Albert R. Booth and Monroe Jacobs on bench warrants which charged them with the murder in November, 1933, of Clarence Yarbey, a negro from the barn of Henry Jolly, the victim's father-in-law, where the men had made ready for an impromptu hanging.

Mrs. Yarbey has worked for two years to refute a coroner's jury verdict of "death from acute alcoholism." Booth and Jacobs were being held in Fulton tower yesterday.

Yarbey was beaten to death. One of the men now charged with the crime told Mrs. Yarbey that they had entered the home and found Yarbey lying on the floor unconscious. They put him on a bed and left, he said.

Mrs. Yarbey said she had been later informed, however, that the two men were seen by passersby dodging behind a parked car in front of the house and acting in a suspicious manner.

Booth and Jacobs were charged in the indictment with killing Yarbey by beating him with their fists and a blunt instrument and by strangling him with a necktie.

The Saturday morning session will be devoted to associating officers' reports. At 1 o'clock by a barbecue and a golf tournament at the Druid Hills Club.

From Depositories,

State depositories which have posted $5,000 Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation certificates as collateral on deposits of state treasury funds must furnish government bonds instead, George B. Hamilton, state treasurer, said yesterday.

A number of small banks in Georgia in which state funds are deposited must replace the F. D. I. C. certificates immediately, or deposits will be withdrawn, Hamilton announced.

Funds are paid out of the state treasury to various departments of government, institutions and boards and are deposited by them in separate maintenance accounts.

TOURIST TRAFFIC*INCREASING HERE*Greatest Volume in City's History Predicted by Motor Club.

Indications that this year will bring the largest volume of tourist traffic in Atlanta's history are found in preliminary counts, Jack Strauss, secretary of the Atlanta Motor Club, said yesterday.

There has been an increase of 33-1-3 per cent in the number of travel inquiries received at the Atlanta office, he said, and traffic counts being made by the club already reveal an increase in tourist volume of between 8 and 15 per cent over the previous high marks, set during the two years of the Chicago World Fair.

With no stellar attraction this year, the increase indicates a loosening of vacation wallets, Strauss said.

Only once before in the 24 years' existence of Publisher Lew B. Brown's "sunshine offer" has an entire year passed between free editions, the run of consecutive sunny days on that occasion ending at 4:53. The total of cloudy days is 116, an average of less than five a year.

Albert Hill, famous as one of the south's greatest quarterbacks, who directed the Georgia Tech eleven which earned the name Golden Tornado, and won the national championship in 1917, has joined the staff of Eastman, Scott & Company, large southern advertising agency, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Hill comes to Eastman, Scott & Company directly from the Coca-Cola Company where he gained valuable experience in the sales and promotion of Coca-Cola in eastern markets.

Prior to his connection with the Coca-Cola Company, he was associated with Synder & Black, one of the largest lithographing and advertising display houses in New York city, for whom he directed the sales activities in the southern territory. His work in this field brought him into close contact with many of the south's largest advertisers and gave him a thorough knowledge of the advertising and merchandising problems of many lines of southern industry. His wide experience and grasp of successful marketing methods and his intimate knowledge of the south as a market, particularly fit him for his present field of work.

Mr. Hill interrupted his college career to become a first lieutenant in the field artillery during the war, returned to Tech and graduated as an honor student in 1918. During his senior year he was unanimous choice for All-Southern quarterback and the choice of many for All-American. He is a member of the S. A. E. fraternity.

In his new capacity, Mr. Hill will devote his time primarily to the southern markets of his firm's clients. Officers of Eastman, Scott & Company, in commenting upon Mr. Hill's connection, said that the increasing volume of the agency's business has necessitated several additions to its staff in recent months and that the acquisition of Mr. Hill would enable the agency to render a more com-

SHIPPERS PROTEST*FREIGHT RATE HIKE*Service Commission Concludes Hearing on Petition of Railroads.

The public service commission yesterday concluded its hearing on a petition from railroads for an increase of 7 to 10 per cent intrastate freight rates.

The hearing was opened Monday, with a rule nisi issued by the interstate commerce commission requiring the Georgia board to show cause why increased rates should not be granted in conformity with interstate rates ordered by the I. C. C. recently.

Representatives of shippers protested the rate increase, contending it would drive freight to some other form of transportation. They said it would result in a loss of revenue to the carriers.

The interstate rate hike ordered by the I. C. C. amounted to 7 per cent on railroad lots and 10 per cent on less than railroad lots. The increase as applied between points in Georgia would be for shipments of freight on distances of more than 220 miles and on specific commodities.

Such increase would be effective for one year only, ending June, 1936. The hearing was closed yesterday after a number of shippers had taken the witness stand, and the commission took the matter under advisement. Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit said a study of records in the case would require several days.

Mediterranean Motif Features Home of Atlantans at Sea Island

By Sally Forth.

SUMMER heat waves will cause no worry to the occupants of Casa de Encanto, handsome new home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Johnson, recently completed at Sea Island. Located directly on the beach and on a slight eminence which affords a splendid view of the coast, the most cooling ocean breezes sweep the home's screened seaside porch. Dusty pink stucco is used for the exterior of the house, which follows the Mediterranean motif predominating with the homes at this Georgia Island resort.

Particularly effective is the nautical theme reflected throughout the house, where the walls in the entrance hall, living room, dining room and in the upstairs hall are of an unusual shade of sea blue and where many of the important details of the decoration are suggestive of the sea.

In the living room, bright-colored chintz is employed to cover the couch, where a darker blue tone predominates, matching the rugs and lending character to the lighter blue walls. A handsome desk covered with blue suede cloth matching the walls holds a lamp which has a white anchor for a base and a white shade bearing clever sea-going phrases and sketches in red, white and blue, while the nautical motif is further reflected in a reading lamp with a brass propeller as a base. Over the sofa is a large Audubon print, featuring the tones of yellow, and a gift from Louis Johnson to his mother. Handsome Audubon prints also adorn the dining room, which has wide French doors opening on to the front porch.

Nothing could be more inviting than the screened porch facing the sea, where the furniture is of dusty pink wicker and iron, with covers in aqua blue and in a deeper blue which accents the lighter tones. Soft-cushioned chairs, deck chairs, and couches on wheels make this an ideal spot for repose. Here again the nautical theme is introduced with huge anchors appearing on the blue canvas backs of the chairs.

Mrs. Johnson's room, facing the sea, has walls of softest pink, and this tone is featured throughout the room, with chintz covers of a lilac design used on the twin beds. Mr. Johnson's room, also affording a view of the ocean, is decorated in yellow, and adjoins that of his son, Louis, whose room displays a happy adaptation of modern furniture in white, trimmed in cherry red. The blue chintz cover on the bed has a brave design of ships and the sea, with splashes of red, and the bedside lamp has a white base in the shape of an anchor with a red and blue shade spangled with white stars. Pistachio green has been chosen for the Johnsons' guest room, which also has striking chintz bed-covers.

Even the comfort of the Atlantans' dogs were not overlooked when they planned their beach home. A modern doghouse with adjoining yard is occupied by these important members of the household. Gin Rickey and Wild Honey are the names of the canines, and they have already developed a love for the front porch as well as for their own play yard.

No thought has been spared on the countless details of the home. But you will have to call on the Johnsons and see for yourself. That is, if you are following the trek of so many Atlantans to Sea Island this month.

A BRIDE whom many of you know has had her pretty head so full of plans and furnishings and decorations for her new home, that she is sometimes rather absent-minded about other

Miss Taylor Weds Mr. Stubbs At University Chapel Ceremony

MR. AND MRS. TRAWICK STUBBS.

Miss Cornelia Taylor became the bride of Trawick Stubbs, of Savannah, at a beautiful sunset ceremony yesterday afternoon in Theological chapel at Emory University. Dr. R. C. Rhodes, of Emory University, assisted by the Rev. Nat Long, performed the impressive service at 5:30 o'clock in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends of the popular young couple.

Palms, ferns and southern smilax bunched the chapel altar, and interspersed in effective arrangement amid the foliage were quantities of white flowers. Cathedral candelabra holding burning tapers in pyramidal effect were placed on either side of the altar. Tall wicker baskets filled with white snapdragons, lilies and white gladioli added an additional bridal note. Fewer reserved for members of the family were marked by clusters of white flowers with white satin ribbon.

Prior to and during the ceremony a beautiful program of nuptial music was rendered by Hugh Hodgson and Clara Harper, violinist. Included on the program were "Evening Star" from Tannhauser; "My Heart At Thy Sweet Voice" from Samson and Delilah; "Melody" by Liszt; "Liebestraum" from Thalberg. Acting as ushers were Dr. William P. Heath, of Baltimore, Md.; Stephen J. West, J. J. Taylor Jr., brother of the bride, and David C. Stubbs. The groomsmen were Bowie Taylor and Sam Taylor, brothers of the bride; Dr. Francis Parker and Herbert Speir, of Savannah, Ga.

Miss Lillian McMichael, of Buena Vista; Mrs. Sam Taylor, of Buena Vista; Mrs. Terrell C. Wesley Parker, were the bridesmaids, and acting as matron of honor was Mrs. J. J. Taylor Jr. They were gowned alike in lovely models of yellow mousseline de soie fashioned with long skirts. A train, introduced at the waist line, was made of a series of tiny ruffles of mousseline. The handsome off-shoulder effect was gained by rows of ruffles, and adding a contrasting note was a sash of poudre blue satin. The attendants wore blue straw hats trimmed in blue velvet ribbon caught in the back with large bows. They carried bouquets of yellow snap dragons and blue delphiniums.

The bride entered with her father, Joseph J. Taylor, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, Alvin Stubbs, of Tavares, Fla., who acted as best man. She was beautiful in the handsome white satin wedding gown worn by Mrs. Francis Parker, the former Miss Mary Taylor, of Tavares, Fla., who acted as bridesmaid. The cowl neck line, caught with a spray of orange blossoms, was a becoming feature and the long light sleeves had tiny satin covered buttons from the wrist to the elbow. The long train

HARDWARE COMPANY REPORTS TRADE GAINS

King Hardware Company
Stockholders Re-elect Officers; New Store at Decatur.

A steady increase in business this year, with bright future prospects, was reported by Dean S. Paden, president of King Hardware Company, at the annual meeting of stockholders.

The stockholders were told that a new store would be opened in Decatur Saturday.

Mr. Paden was re-elected by the stockholders, together with John T. Braswell, vice president; Miss Elizabeth E. Chase, secretary; and Lloyd C. Smith, manager of retail store at 23 Peachtree street. Robert H. Lyon was named chairman of the board of directors, serving with Mrs. Claude C. Smith, Mrs. J. T. Williams, Lloyd C. Smith and Frank Russell.

As a token of appreciation for their work, employees of the firm will receive a bonus, it was announced. The firm contemplates no salary reductions or layoffs as a result of the NRA decision, Mr. Paden said. He pointed out there had been added nine new employees and several promotions with increases in salary had been ordered recently.

The stockholders voted payment of preferred and common stock as usual. Expansion of the firm continues with the opening of the store in Decatur, it was said, following a period of steady increase in the business volume of the company and the belief that business prospects for the future are very much brighter.

TRADE AID URGED

Reduction in Tariffs Asked at Seaport Meet.

NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP)—A program to revive the nation's international trade and suggesting a reduction in tariffs was adopted unanimously today by delegates of 33 ports at Mayor LaGuardia's conference of seaport cities.

The resolutions were adopted over the protest of Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, of Boston, who contended they were too general and disregarded the problems of New England.

He objected specifically to the omission from the resolution of the Canadian tariff issue which he presented to the conference yesterday. Mayor Mansfield later endorsed the resolutions to make the vote unanimous.

The first resolution requested the mayors to determine the scope of their cities to determine the scope of the shipping industry in their ports. The effect of the decline of foreign trade, and to suggest ways to increase it.

A petition to President Roosevelt and congress was asked in the second resolution, requesting that steps be taken by the federal government to stimulate commerce.

TWO ELECTROCUTED

Texans Pay Penalty for At-

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., June 12.—(AP)—Death sentences imposed on Elijah Stewart, 28, for drowning one of his 4-year-old twin daughters, and on John B. Willis, 42, for attacking a bride after tying her husband to a nearby tree, were carried out here early today.

At 12:04 A. M. Stewart, tall and angular illiterate Oklahoma farmer, the first to go, was strapped into the chair. Just 20 minutes later the double execution had been completed. Willis, a "viper" electrician and former Louisiana bank robber, short and red of face, protested to the fact that he was innocent, although he was identified by both the victim and her husband.

WALKER MAY RETURN

TO NEW YORK IN FALL

LONDON, June 12.—(AP)—Jimmy Walker, former New York mayor, said today he might return to New York in September but flatly denied reports published in New York that he and his wife, the former Betty Compton, were sailing next week with Belle Baker.

The reports apparently arose from the fact that Walker personally arranged the singer's passage aboard the Washington sailing June 20 and that he and his wife have been frequently seen in the company of Miss Baker and her former husband, Lew Leslie.

Dr. Aberle, not yet 40, has been appointed superintendent of all Indian pueblos in the state, a total of 20. Not only is she the first woman to hold the position, but her post combines the work formerly done by two men superintendents.

ROBINSON LASHES

GRASS ROOTS RALLY

Republicans Have Nothing

New To Offer, Senate

Leader Declares.

JONESBORO, Ark., June 12.—(AP)—Senate democratic leader Joe T. Robinson tonight lashed out at the republican grass roots rally at Springfield, Ill., branded his party's opposition as "malicious obstructionism," and declared "it is not conceivable that the country will turn from Roosevelt back to Hoover."

Honor guest at a banquet of the Arkansas Pharmaceutical Association in convention here, Robinson turned a sharply worded indictment on the Springfield gathering and in a speech prepared for the occasion, said:

"The proceedings of the middle west regional republican convention disclose the fact that the republican party have merely become an obstructionist organization."

"The republicans have nothing new to suggest."

KING GEORGE ILL

English Ruler Ordered To

Take 2-Week Rest.

SANDRINGHAM, England, June 12.—(AP)—King George was reported in a bulletin issued by his physician today to be suffering from bronchial catarrh necessitating a two-week rest.

The bulletin, signed by Dr. Frederick Williams and Lord Dawson, of Penn, read:

"The king is suffering from bronchial catarrh which is slow in disappearing because his majesty is fatigued by his efforts of the last few weeks. A period of not less than two weeks' rest will be required in order that his majesty may recover his usual health. The king is remaining at Sandringham for the present."

King George and Queen Mary had planned to return to London today and attend Covent Garden tonight to hear George Moore in "La Boheme."

PARDON APPROVED

FOR ATLANTA YOUTH

NEW ORLEANS, June 12.—(AP)—The Louisiana board of pardons has recommended clemency for Winfield P. Woolf, Jr., 23, of Atlanta, who was convicted here of a $84 holdup of a pharmacy in 1933 and sentenced to 10 to 14 years in prison.

The board took the action yesterday after hearing a plea by Woolf's mother who had come here a third time to plead for the release of her son. Lieutenant Governor James A. Noe, a member of the pardons board, said he permitted to go through the United States marshal today on her trip to the Angola state penitentiary where her son is imprisoned.

Latest Issue of Market Bulletin

Sent Out as Second Class Mail

Carrying a new attack on the AAA and the cotton processing tax, more than 100,000 copies of the Market Bulletin, official publication of the state department of agriculture, were permitted to go through the United States mails yesterday as second-class mail.

The postoffice department recently warned Tom Linder, commissioner of agriculture, that he ceased discussing topics of political nature in the Bulletin second-class mailing privileges will be withdrawn and instead of paying $30 postage per issue the rate will go up to $400.

Postal officials, however, gave Linder until June 20 to make up his mind and for that reason no attempt was made by Postmaster Lon Livingston yesterday to hold up mailing of the publication. Next week's issue will also be admitted as second-class mail, but, unless the commissioner of agriculture signs a written statement that he will refrain from discussing political questions in the Bulletin and

CAPT. S. J. ROBERTS

GOES ON TRIAL TONIGHT

Lieutenant Ginn Slated To

Get Post If Police Officer

Is Convicted.

Captain S. J. Roberts, veteran member of the police department, will go on trial on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer before the police committee of council tonight.

It convicted of the charge, Captain Roberts will be demoted to the rank of lieutenant and Lieutenant E. W. Ginn will be promoted to his place, it was predicted by informed sources last night.

Charges were brought against the captain by Oscar H. Pendley, secretary of the police department and the committee, who accused Captain Roberts, who was a police officer with "spreading malicious, premeditated falsehoods in an effort to convict me of a crime."

The policewomen, Mrs. Lora Davis and Mrs. Vannie McDonough, were fired after a hearing by the police committee last week, but Captain Roberts, being a civil service employee, must be brought to trial.

Ginn is a veteran of the department also, and served for years as a detective. He was recently elevated to the rank of lieutenant.

It was problematical last night as to whether a proposal to create the office of sergeant of police will be considered tonight.

Recommendation that an officer one rank lower than lieutenant be created have been made frequently of late, but whether or not the matter will come up for consideration at this meeting was not known.

LANCASTER, Pa., June 12.—(AP)—The commonwealth today capped its story of the midnight moaning and death of Mrs. Gladys Lawson, of Calvert, Md., by laying a huge saw and sharp steel knives with which it contends her body was dismembered, before the jury hearing its charges today.

Dr. H. C. Zimmerly, of Mechanics Grove, charged with illegal operations.

State police testified they were found in the littered farmhouse at Mechanics Grove where the doctor had set up a makeshift hospital.

Blanche St. ne, Zimmerly's domestic, described the death of the Calvert, Md., mother of two children, at midnight, March 15.

In cross examination, she declared she was not afraid to enter the "haunted farm," asserting, "I'm not scared of ghosts." But she said she was "afraid" to report the case to police or talk to neighbors.

Pale and twitching, testified he had seen Gladys Lawson "in a condition which appeared to be death" at the Mechanics Grove house.

Zimmerly kept his eyes glued on Parker, Parker tried to avoid that gaze.

DAILY SHORT STORY SILENT UPROAR

Neyssa Found the Perfect Solution for a Serious and Annoying Domestic Problem.

BY A. HUGH M'MULLEN.

The savory roast Neyssa pulled out of the oven was a peace offering. It was done to a turn. The potatoes ranged around it were just the right shade of brown. It was a dish to melt the heart of a Pharaoh.

Last night she and George had quarreled. They were just finishing dinner when he announced that he was going out. He knew where there was to be a chicken fight and he was going.

Neyssa had passed a law forbidding his attendance at chicken fights. George vetoed the law at once. Neyssa passed it over his veto. To insure its enforcement she hid the keys.

"Neyssa, I want those keys!" His voice had the quiet, cutting quality of pent-up anger. She had shuddered inwardly as he said it.

"Do you?" Wares of electro-mo-

After 10 days of this silent treatment George began to fidget. Neyssa arranged everything as far as possible so that the monotony was not broken. His evening paper failed to come. He glanced covertly over the top.

Neyssa was slid down in her chair until she rested on the back of her neck.

He snapped the radio on. No sound came from it.

"What's the matter with this thing?" Neyssa shrugged her shoulders.

"Now let's be sensible. We're supposed to be grown up. This nonsense has gone far enough."

"I've decided that you're right. If more wives did less chattering evenings home would be far more attractive."

George choked down his anger, but it was a terrific struggle. His face turned apoplectic. Heat waves actual-ly rose from the crown of his head.

He watched Neyssa shift to a more comfortable position, heard her sigh contentedly.

Suddenly his anger was gone. He smiled. Then he grinned. As he strode over to Neyssa's chair, he laughed boisterously.

Her magazine fell to the floor. She rose in the air as though she might have been one of the twins. She was tumbled about with the same reckless ease. How good those bare strong arms felt as they crushed her to him!

ATLANTA CITY, June 12.—(AP)—To several hundred wives of American Medical Association physicians who expressed particular interest in the mother of the Dionne quintuplets, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe today predicted early reunion with their mother, and ultimate union of the entire family.

Torgler surrendered voluntarily to police shortly after the reichstag building was burned early in 1933, but was acquitted by the supreme court at Leipzig of charges of complicity in the arson. His acquittal came in December of the year, but he was taken into "protective custody," and has been held in various jails since.

His sudden release, kept strictly secret, leaked out through various channels today. Just where Torgler went was not made public, but it was said that he was released on condition that he will not reside within the Berlin city limits and it was understood that he and his family have settled in a quiet place about 30 miles from the capital.

Ezell-Walker Rites Solemnized At Beautiful Home Ceremony

Miss Marcia Clyde Ezell became the bride of Warren Beridol Walker at a beautiful ceremony solemnized last evening at the bride's home on Springdale road. The wedding guests assembled at 8:30 o'clock for the marriage service which was read by the Rev. Edward Vandiver, pastor of Rome. The interior of the home presented a scene of floral beauty as arranged for the wedding. An improvised altar in the drawing room was formed of tall palms and giant woodwardia ferns, against which stood in relief a series of floor baskets filled with white gladioli and white snapdragons. Interspersing the rich foliage were tall standards topped with cathedral candelabra holding white tapers.

While the wedding guests assembled, Mrs. Robert Stuart Lawrence Jr. rendered "Evening Star," by Wagner, and she accompanied Mrs. Ezell, violinist, who played "Poem," by Elrich. Mrs. Albert A. Guess, aunt of the bride, sang "Ah, Sweet as Any Flower," by Lloyd G. Kerr, and "All for You," by Bertrand Brown. During the ceremony Mrs. Lawrence played "Dreams of Love," by Lint. Mrs. Lawrence was given in Nile green chiffon, and wore a cluster of tall, pink roses. Mrs. Guess wore dark blue lace with pink roses.

Miss Elizabeth Tarver, of Aiken, S. C., was the maid of honor, and the bride's only attendant. She was being groomed in a blue chiffon, trimmed in flesh, fashioned along princess lines and flaring in graceful fullness. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and orchid sweet peas.

James Edwin Walker was his brother's best man. The bride entered with her father, John T. Ezell. She was lovely in her gown of soft white lace made along princess lines with a duchess lace collar caught with pearl clips. The only jewelry the bride wore was a diamond ring formerly belonging to her great-grandmother. She carried a bouquet of calla lilies.

Mrs. John T. Ezell, mother of the bride, was groomed in ashes of roses chiffon and her shoulder bouquet was Johanna Hill roses. Mrs. D. P. Shaw, grandmother of the bride, was groomed in black chiffon and lace, and her flowers were orchids.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Ezell were hosts at a wedding reception. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Charles N. Nellans, Mrs. Norman W. Pettys, Mrs. Lawrence C. Smith, Misses Virginia Ogletree, Ann Wimshill and Edith Grace and Berkeley Tarver. Miss Amine Penn kept the bride's book.

The popular young couple left for a short wedding trip. The bride's traveling costume was of black boucle trimmed in white angora, with all black white accessories.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Tarver, Misses Edith Grace and Berkeley Tarver, of Aiken, S. C.; Mrs. D. P. Shaw and Mr. Albert A. Guess, of Corsicana, Texas; Miss Meia Kretschman and Josiah Kirby, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Clark, Misses Julia and Louis Clark, of Greenville, S. ## Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD
Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield:
I read with interest the letter of the single woman who said she was impatient with married women who complained of their lot, and that if a woman was lucky enough to be married and have a home, no matter what sort of husband supplied it she shouldn't complain. This young woman doesn't know what some of us wives know; that a woman can be lonely married or single. And if she is married and lonely she is broken hearted too, yet must smile and smile. I have a nice home and everything nice to go with it but it is not a happy place because my husband is jealous, hot-tempered and has a nagging tongue to boot. I started divorce proceedings but decided to be a good sport and stick. I have two lovely children who are good to me and sympathetic with my pain. My husband says "Why should you kick? You have children, friends, a home, money to spend on what you want. This is true but I also have a husband who treats me with utter disrespect, talks to me in public as though I were a dumb brute. For the children's sake I say forgive, forgive, forgive and do, but there is not much happiness in life when forgiveness is constantly necessary. Yes, wives are often lonely as well as spinsters." M. M.

Answer:
A woman who lives alone and does her own work has a maid to come in once a week to do the washing and special cleaning. She says that she looks forward to that day with infinite pleasure for the sheer joy of feeling the presence of another in her own home. When there is scant conversation with that servant, the mere consciousness that there is a human being around gives the householder a sense of comfort and peace. This is the sort of loneliness that the spinster speaks of—the loneliness of echoing walls where no voice is heard, no presence. As for wives who have roofs over their heads, a sense of security in that alone, with say nothing of people around with whom they may exchange a word, and her own children to put soft arms around their necks and whisper sweet confidences in their ears, they can hardly claim a loneliness in the strict sense of the word.

Of course no woman is happy when relations between her and her husband are strained. She lives in the shadow of that cloud, day and night. Self-sufficient, she goes about making a life of her own that doesn't include him. If she is not self-sufficient she shrivels up and slowly dies of dry rot. If she has no children this isn't a crime against anybody but herself but if she has children it is a crime against them. They are not responsible for the state of affairs between their parents and it is wicked for the children to be penalized.

Sacha Guitry, whose memoirs are now being published, says that his father and mother were divorced when he and his brother were quite young and, though they didn't realize it at the time, their lives were, they were always saddened by the consciousness that something terrible was taking place between their parents. A woman on strained relations with her husband hasn't time to be lonely if she makes and keeps a normal home life for her cheated children.

Perhaps the spinster is right after all when she says that the wife and mother knows nothing of loneliness who spends her life in a rented room and eats her meals at restaurants and drugstore counters, moves among crowds made up of people who are dependent upon her or she upon them. Here it is that the wife and mother has the best of it; there are people dependent upon her and no woman is satisfied unless somebody is dependent upon her. She will fasten her heart on a dog, a cat or a canary for the joy of knowing that some living thing looks to her for food and affection, and protection.

A woman's children are dependent upon her for everything and if she doesn't fail them when they are young it is not likely that they will fail her when she is old. This should enable her to sing and smile, to sublimate the heartache that the disappointing husband makes and to see her lot as brighter than the lot of the lonely woman who is really alone.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Battle for Partial Scores.

One of the fascinating features of duplicate play is the bidding battle in deals that at rubber bridge would be utterly devoid of interest. The following is a striking example:

Neither side vulnerable.

South West North East
J 8 4 2
Q 8 7 5

A J 10 3

At most of the tables the duplicate game this deal was played at the normal rubber bridge contract of two or three clubs. One East-West pair became utterly ambitious and contracted for no-trumps and won only seven tricks. One North-South pair was doubled at one spade and was set only one trick, giving East-West the next top score.

The bidding at one table was particularly instructive in the tactics to be followed in partial-score deals. (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
1 Pass (1) Pass (2) Dbl. (3)
Pass 2 4 (4) Pass Pass (5)
2 (6) Dbl. (7) Pass Pass

1—Because of his spade length, West could not risk taking action.
2—What else was there to do?
3—In duplicate the bidding must usually be reopened with this strength.

4—West had a very difficult problem. He could be confident that his side could take the contract at a partial-score, or set South if he rebid. But there might be more; there might actually be a game. There was no way of knowing how far East's double was dictated by the situation and how far by his top strength. He resolved upon a third course, designed to trap South. This was the simple bid of two clubs, to encourage South to rebid.

5—East and no, the values to make a further bid in the teeth of West's apparently weak response.

6—South was on the spot. The opportunity was there to find out whether they held a game. North's first-round pass might mean strong support for one of the two major suits enabling it to triumph over the clubs.

7—West was willing to pay for penalties rather than part-scores, so he dou led the hearts, feeling reasonably sure that the East-West side strength was sufficient to set the contract.

The Play.
The accuracy of the defense produced a top-score. West opened a heart. Jummy won in order to lead a spade. East put the king of spades right up. South won with the ace. East then started the clubs, and by forcing South to use his long trump the defense made sure South would never win a diamond trick. The defense finally won the two top diamonds and the fourth round of clubs. Declarer won two spades and four trumps, being set two tricks for 300 points.

Court-Martial Faced For Marrying Dancer
NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP)—Lieutenant Harry A. Sebastian, former West Point football star, starved at Governor's Island, will face trial by court martial tomorrow at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, on a charge of having violated army regulations by marrying Harriet Hagman Sebastian, former Vanities dancer, in 1931, while he was still at the military academy.

It is responsible for the disclosure that it was allegedly performed in violation of the rule which forbids cadets to marry.

Miss Burford and Mr. Atkinson Are United at Druid Hills Church

A wedding marked by beauty and dignity was that of Miss Florence Culpepper Burford and Almonzo Morris Atkinson, which was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Druid Hills Methodist church. Miss Ethel Beyer, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. The interior of the church was decorated with the palms and ferns. The altar was banked in palms with three seven-branch candelabra holding white burning tapers. The pulpit held in the center a mound of Easter lilies, white snapdragons and white gladioli. Across the pulpit were six seven-branch candelabra holding burning tapers.

The ushers and groomsmen, Ernest Littleton, Frank Edwards, Joe Atkinson and J. W. Culpepper, entered first in pairs followed by the bridesmaids, Misses Miriam Copeland, Frances Smith, of Cincinnati; Catherine Swanger and Virginia Byers. The bride's attendants were groomed alike in floor-length yellow lace dresses banded with wide yellow net ruffles at the bottom and worn with yellow capes. They wore blue picture hats, blue sandals and mits, and carried bouquets of pink and yellow snapdragons tied with yellow ribbon.

The matron of honor, Mrs. J. W. Culpepper, entered next followed by the maid of honor, Miss Katherine Burford. They wore blue lace dresses fashioned along the same lines as those of the bridesmaids. Their hats were yellow, and they wore yellow sandals and mits, and carried bouquets of pink and yellow snapdragons.

The bride's niece, little Betty Culpepper, wore a flower girl's dress, and preceded the bride. She wore a floor-length dress of yellow net with deep ruffles at the bottom and a cape collar. Her sandals and hair ribbon were blue and she carried a nosegay of pastel flowers.

Lovely Bride.
The bride entered with her father, Thomas C. Burford, by whom she was given in marriage. Her Spanish blonde type of beauty was enhanced by her chanel wedding gown of cream satin fashioned with a full-length coat with train of bridal lace. The coat was bordered with cream satin. Her veil was trimmed with small pearls and orange blossoms. A bit of sentiment was attached to the handkerchief, which the bride carried. It was made of handmade lace, and was carried by the bride's mother at her wedding and at the christenings of her three daughters.

The bride and her father were met at the altar by the bridegroom and his brother, Ernest Atkinson, who acted as best man. The ceremony was performed by Dr. John Brandon Peters, pastor of the church.

Mrs. Thomas C. Burford, mother of the bride, was groomed in beet-root chiffon, with which she wore hat and shoes to match. Her bag and gloves were of white and she wore a shoulder bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and valley lilies.

The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. W. J. Atkinson, wore a becoming model of powder blue lace with a cape effect at the shoulders. Her accessories were a blue felt hat and white shoes and gloves. Her shoulder bouquet was of Johanna Hill roses and valley lilies.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding included Mrs. Almonzo Jones of Hendersonville, N. C.; Dr. and Mrs. J. V. Tate, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Burford, Mrs. Neva Fortson, Misses Elizabeth and Alice Tate, Winnifred and Virian Burford, all of Calhoun Falls, S. C.; Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Porter, of Rome, Ga.; Misses Joyce and Mabel Storey, of Jefferson, Ga.; Misses Julia and June Clark, of Greenville, Ga.; Miss Mathilda Kyser, of Talladega, Ala.

After the ceremony Mr. Atkinson was driven left by motor for a wedding trip through the north. The bride donated as a going-away outfit a brown suit with matching accessories and a chaise longue. Upon their return last of June Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson will reside at their home on University drive, N. E.

MISSOURI IS RISING
River Rises 2 Feet, Moves Toward Flood Crest.
ST. LOUIS, June 12.—(AP)—The unruly Missouri river, fed by heavy rains, surged back today in western Missouri toward the crest of a destructive flood from which it had been receding.

The river rose two feet at Kansas City yesterday and was expected to add another foot today, bringing its stage up to 22.5 feet. Last week's crest was 23.5 feet.

While river men looked apprehensively to levees, weakened by the battering they received, little additional damage was expected.

In a four-state war wrought havoc, Missouri suffered damage estimated as high as $20,000,000. Colorado, Nebraska and Kansas were also in the destructive paths of rampaging rivers.

By FRANK MACMILLAN.

NEW YORK, June 12.—(P)—

Traders and investors appeared in an uncertain frame of mind today and the stock market seemed and finally tilted downward.

Yesterday's passage by the senate of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill for the abolition of certain types of utility holding companies came after the close, but was promptly greeted in early trading today with a sharp dip in power issues.

A morning rally, however, offset the major portion of the losses in this division and other sections of the list got substantially better.

Renewed selling in utilities took the heart out of the buying sentiment toward the finish. Rails held better than the balance of the list but were mostly little better than even at the finish.

Bonds generally adopted the stock market pattern with utility holding company loans depressed, while rails, which were strong early in the day, eventually lost most of their gains.

United States government bonds advanced modestly.

Wheat acted as a brake on any runaway enthusiasm elsewhere, with a break of 2 1/2 to 2 3/4 cents a bushel at the close as traders in Chicago learned that the harvest was under way in some parts of Kansas, bringing the threat of augmented selling pressure. Corn sold off 1/4 to 1 3/8 cents a bushel and cotton was 40 to 60 cents lower.

Volume mounted.

Turnover accelerated as traders plumped first to one side of the market and then the other. Volume in the stock exchange was 1,263,120 shares. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was .3 of a point off at 43.3. The 15 utilities used in the calculation, however, lost a full point at 30.3.

Traders got little help from the news in making up their minds as to the immediate trend of business. While the weekly steel report of Iron Age saw increasing evidence of the approaching summer dullness, electric power output for the latest week rose substantially more than seasonally, and early in the morning of Friday, railroads were running ahead of the previous week and the same week of 1934.

News Encouraging.

Dividend news was encouraging, with declarations of extra payment of $1 by directors of Air Reduction, in addition to the usual 75 cents quarterly amount. Addressograph-Multiplan resumed payments of $1.50 with a 15-cent dividend, the first since April, 1932.

For all its generally reactionary tone, the share market was not without its distinctly strong spots. International Business Machines and Hazel Atlas Glass gained around 4 points, the former 17 1/2 and the latter at a new 1935 high of 122 1/2.

Improvement of 1 to 2 points or so was registered for Air Reduction at 139 and American Can at 156, both at new peaks for the year. Monsanto Chemical at 42 7/8 and Louisville &amp; Nashville at 42 1/2 and Reading at 32 1/2.

Union Pacific at 102 1/2, Public Service of New Jersey at 33 1/2, American Smelting at 42 5/8 and American Water Works at 11 1/2 lost better than a point. Consolidated Gas declined in consolidated Gas at 23 1/2. General Motors at 31 1/4, United Gas Improvement at 12 7/8 and Standard Oil of New Jersey at 45 1/2.

IN ELECTRIC OUTPUT

NEW YORK, June 12.—(P)—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks of electric power production jumped 1.6 points for the past week to 97.0, reflecting a substantially larger than seasonal gain in power output for the seven days following the Memorial Day week.

The 97.0 figure was also above the corresponding week of 1934, when the index stood at 96.1, and is based on 1929-30 as 100, is adjusted for seasonal and long-term trends.

CROSS WINDS BUFFET
CORPORATION BONDSU. S. Government Offerings
Display Uniform
Steadiness.

Daily Bond Averages.
(Copyright, 1935, Standard Statistics Co.)
Wednesday, June 12—Following are today's high, low and closing prices of bonds on the New York Stock Exchange and the total sales of each bond.

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—(AP)—The corporate bond market was buffeted around by strong cross winds working in opposite directions and in the trials caught in a jam between the two groups, United States government bonds displayed uniform steadiness.

Passage by the senate last night of the Wheeler-Rayburn holding company bill was responsible for a substantial accumulation of overnight selling orders in utilities which clogged trading machinery at the beginning of the day. The bill, which would create an equally heavy demand for secondary rail bonds during the first two hours contributed to the confusion.

Before the movement in each group had run its course many power and light company obligations had declined 2 to 5 points and worked favorably among the buyers and recent 1 to 2 or more higher.

From this point there was a leveling off in both divisions and during the trading utility bonds began to lead the way and the rail bonds lost some of their pep. Industrials, meanwhile, were almost entirely neglected and wandered aimlessly about the market.

The settling anywhere. The Associated Press averages for 20 rails advanced 5 of a point to 81.2 and 10 utilities declined 7 of a point to 80.2. The averages for other groups were unchanged to 1 of a point lower.

Transfers aggregated $14,481,000, par value, slightly under the $15,000,000 volume of the previous day. The turnover in government bonds was only around $1,500,000, indicating most of the trading was done in corporate issues.

While government bonds were cast aside in the shuffle, an extremely steady tone prevailed throughout the group. Gains ranged from 2-3/4 to 3-3/4 in the 3-8s of 1941. Indirect obligations were nearly all much higher.

There was only a slight increase in interest in the foreign domain. Polish 7s, Cordoba 7s and Bulgarian 7s were a point higher, while recessions occurred in many of the South and Central American loans.

CHICAGO, June 12.—(AP)—All deliveries of wheat pitched downward for several weeks yet.

Reports that wheat harvesting had started at some points in Kansas led to a sudden augmented selling.

The bottom prices for the day were reached just before trading ended, with the market showing 21 cents decline since the middle of the week.

Since the middle of the week, the market has been in a state of decline, with the bottom prices for the day reached just before trading ended.

A contributing bearish influence was weakness of the Liverpool wheat market, which came about largely as a result of cheaper offerings of wheat from Argentina.

Death of any adequate supply in evidence, despite indications that the first run of hard winter wheat would be in brisk request from mills.

Domestic grain held, together with uncertainty over disposal of the Canadian wheat surplus did much to precipitate the decline.
